Shelford Won't Run In Next Election

Social Credit MLA Cyril Shelford — noted as one of the least partisan politicians in the legislature — has announced his intention not to seek re-election.

The 23-year veteran of provincial politics who represents Skeena riding, said in Terrace this weekend he is disillusioned with the bickering in the house.

Last week he said he knows of several other MLAs who will not run next time around but he declined to name them.

Shelford, a former agriculture minister in the W.A.C. Bennett administration, has been branded a maverick on a number of occasions because of his actions; including his support of an opposition non-confidence motion in the mid-1950's.

In his most recent speech in the house, Shelford, 57, said MLA's spend four-fifths of their time attacking one another instead of attacking problems.

He suggested the Socred government set up a small all-party committee to recommend changes in the operation of the legislature.

Such a committee might work, he said, because there are some MLA's who can agree that for the good of the province, changes must be made.

He said if personal attacks continue, people will soon believe that all parties are the same.

"Once this starts, it can soon spread so that democracy itself disappears."

He says he doesn't blame any one party in the legislature: "I think we're all caught in a trap of our own making."

MAIR NAMES RENTALSMAN

Rent Review Commission manager Jim Patterson was today named by Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair to succeed Barrie Clark as rentalsman effective May 1.

Patterson, 31, was named head of the rent review commission in 1975 and has worked closely with the rentalsman's office.

Clark announced two months ago he was quitting over budget restrictions.

Drunken Inmates On Axe Rampage At Jordan River

Pickaxe-wielding inmates at the Jordan River minimum security prison camp went on a drunken rampage Saturday night, burning to the ground an office-stores-gymnasium complex valued at $150,000, wrecking the camp's radio station and damaging other buildings, furnishings and equipment.

Following the disturbance, which lasted more than two hours and involved almost half the camp's 38 inmates, 14 prisoners were transferred to Wilkinson Road jail.

A senior official in the provincial corrections branch said today that liquor, perhaps of the bootleg variety, appears to have been the basic cause of the violence, which has seriously hampered the institution's operating ability.

Bill Jack, regional director of corrections for Vancouver Island, said no one was hurt in the incident although "there was a lot of shouting, rock throwing and pickaxe swinging."

The 4,000-square-foot building destroyed by fire was completed only about two months ago, he said, with inmates providing some of the labor in conjunction with the public works department.

"We are really concerned about it because in one fell blow they have wiped out the concentrated efforts of two years," he added.

"The camp is still functioning and staff are doing their best to keep things going, but this poses a lot of problems for basic things like food and stores items."

Jack said only two prison staff were on duty when the violence erupted. Off-duty staff and camp director Bill Dyke were called in, as well as Sooke RCMP.

An RCMP spokesman said today the first call for assistance came at about 8:30 p.m. and the incident was over by 11 p.m.

One inmate escaped during the uprising but was later apprehended. Police said they are still investigating and it is not known whether charges will be laid.

Jack said the rioters smashed the camp's radio equipment, which is used to maintain communications between the base camp and work details in the woods.

The radio also provided a link with the Wilkinson Road institution, and was used for emergency calls.

Other vandalism included damage to a hobby and games room. "Someone took a power saw and hacked through some of the walls."

Jack said the ready access to liquor in a minimum security camp is always a problem.

"In an open setting like Jordan River's, drop-offs are easily made and it's also fairly easy to get a still going somewhere in the bush," he added.

SPORTS

Some of the character Victoria Cougars showed during the Western Canada Hockey League campaign and playoffs came up again Sunday but it didn't help prolong their season. The Cougars, beaten 8-3 Saturday, were eliminated Sunday at Memorial Arena when they dropped a 6-5 decision to defending champion New Westminster Bruins. But the Cougars went out trying. Story on page 14.

The hockey season continues for others.

Team Canada, placing much of its faith in "young legs," announced the lineup that will represent Canada in the world championships later this month. Among the youth-dominated lineup is Minnesota North Star rookie Brad Maxwell, a native of Victoria. Page 14.

Buffalo Sabres tripped New York Rangers 4-1 Saturday to complete the quarter-final lineup in the National Hockey League playoffs. The eight Stanley Cup survivors square off tonight. Page 14.

Professionals Cec Ferguson and John Morgan both fired par 70s Sunday at Royal Colwood to top qualifiers in the annual Vancouver Island Open golf tournament. The qualifying-round surprise, however, was the failure of defending champion Jim Rutledge. He missed. Page 15.

Also in golf, Gary Player came seven strokes off the pace to win the Tournament of Champions by two shots (page 15) and Burnaby's Jim Nelford, starting out as the day's leader, faded in the stretch to finish third in the Tallahassee Open which was won by Barry Jaeckel. (Page 21).

Gov't Wavers In Moro Case

ROME (AP) — Italy's governing Christian Democratic party has indicated it may modify its refusal to negotiate for the life of former premier Aldo Moro, kidnapped by terrorists a month ago, but the Communists urged the government to remain firm.

Christian Democratic leaders met for three hours Sunday to discuss the announcement from the Red Brigades terrorist organization that a "people's court" has sentenced Moro to death. A statement issued after the meeting said the party, while "aware of our duties before the nation" was "anguished about the life of (Moro) and therefore on the humanitarian level we feel that this life must be spared by all juridically possible and legitimate means."

The party, of which Moro is president, repeatedly rejected demands by the Red Brigades through letters written by Moro for the release of jailed terrorists. Fifteen of them are on trial in Turin on charges of sedition. However, the Christian Democrats never have ruled out the possibility of buying Moro's freedom with ransom money from his friends or family.

The Communists, the largest of the parties supporting the minority Christian Democratic government in parliament, said in an editorial in the party newspaper L'Unita that "emotional feelings (must not) prevail on the coolness and calm necessary in this grave hour."

TAXPAYERS PICK UP $60M-TAB FOR LOAN

TORONTO (CP) — More than 55,000 Canadians who borrowed money to go to university have defaulted on their government-guaranteed student loans at a cost to taxpayers at least $60 million, according to the Toronto Star.

The newspaper says those who have defaulted include successful businessmen and professionals.

The loans — obtained through the Canada Student Loans Program — are interest free until a student has been out of school six months.

The Star says it interviewed students who owe money, spokesmen for banks that made the loans, the federal government and the commercial collection agency hired to collect the loans and a source who has worked for several years with all four groups.

Ryan Says Leadership Was Key to Victory

But at his first formal news conference Sunday, the man who garnered 68.4 per cent of weekend delegate votes walked a fine line between leadership and insisting: "I don't want to impose my ideas on the national assembly (Liberal) caucus."

Ryan replied to most questions about the direction in which he would lead the Liberals with an appeal for time to consult with party members.

The former newspaper publisher, who 17 months ago urged the 40,000 subscribers of the influential Montreal daily Le Devoir to ditch the Liberal government of Robert Bourassa, also appealed for a clear start on a renewed Liberal party.

He said the provincial Liberal party should remain on the sidelines of an eventual federal election campaign but left the door open to possible involvement should Ottawa make constitutional proposals an issue.

Ryan, whose main campaign speech said "we are Quebecers first . . . but we are also Canadians, we are also in favor of maintaining a federal Canada," urged "infinite prudence" on federal involvement in the Quebec referendum question on independence.

He said there are good arguments to be made for a decision either way on whether he should try for a legislative seat—more time to consult with party members if he were free of national assembly duties, higher profile to confront the government of Premier Rene Levesque if he were a sitting member.

Hailed by his supporters as a thinker on constitutional and other issues, Ryan announced he plans to define the party's constitutional position in coming months.

Dollar Trading Down

Times News Services

In London, the British pound sold for $1.8490 U.S., a drop from $1.857. The Bank of England bought pounds to support the currency, and the pound recovered somewhat. In Montreal today the pound was at $2.1218.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar closed at 220.25 yen, up from 219.425, despite an announcement of record surpluses in Japan's current account and trade for March. Japanese ministers reacted quickly to the announcement of the surplus which could provoke fresh criticism from the United States and the European Economic Community.

Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda told a news conference that Japan could cut its current account balance of payments surplus drastically this year and External Economic Affairs Minister Nobuhiko Ushiba said Japan should make further tariff reduction concessions in the Multinational Trade Negotiations in Geneva.

The price of gold was fixed in London at $175.10 U.S. an ounce, down $3.40 from Friday's closing $178.50.

Metchosin Men Rescued After Cold Night Adrift

Four Metchosin men were rescued early Sunday morning after a frightening night adrift in a 15-foot fibreglass runabout.

They left Pedder Bay about 11 a.m. Saturday to go fishing and a short time later, the boat's outboard engine broke down.

Staton, owner of the boat, says the ordeal began when they found the boat being pulled out by the tide.

By 3 p.m. Saturday they were off Race Rocks and could see boats in the distance.

They tried to attract attention by setting fire to a lifejacket but the fire went unnoticed.

"It was a pretty rough night," Staton said today.

"It rained all night and it was blowing. We were pretty cold and pretty wet."

At 1 a.m. Sunday, Staton said a helicopter passed overhead but they couldn't signal because they had no lights, the battery having gone dead.

They tried waving a lifejacket on the end of a fishing rod but it was too dark to be noticed.

The worst moment was at daybreak when they realized no search had been started for them.

"It was getting a bit scarey," Staton said.

"We were paddling when we saw this freighter passing by. We stood up and waved our lifejackets."

The crew of the freighter Pergmoss told the men they

Great Egg Race Champ

A Burnaby man who managed to propel an egg 38.85 metres with an elastic band captured the first place title in the Great B.C. Egg Race Saturday.

William Cameron, 53, won the over-all competition after his egg machine travelled all the way up the end ramp and back down again.

The idea was to see how far, not how fast egg-carrying machines could move down a designated runway. Only Grade A large domestic eggs could be used.

A device called the Pushmi Pollo invented by the team of John Sibert, 37, and John Thompson, 46, of Nanaimo, moved an egg 25.2 metres to take second place.

The vehicle, powered by a No. 10 Viceroy elastic, gets the first part of its name from a mythical two-headed creature featured in Dr. Doolittle children's books and the last part from the Spanish word for chicken.

In the Class A category (13 years old and under) the winner was Mark Knelson, 11, and the Class B event (14 to 19 years of age) winner was Eddie Harcourt, 15. Both winners gave the same Burnaby address as Cameron.

There were only five entries in the competition. The only Victoria contestant, John La Boyne, experienced difficulties at the starting gate.

Rental Car Firm Guilty

LANGLEY (CP) — Budget Rent-a-Car System has been fined $200 in provincial court after pleading guilty to misleading advertising.

The company admitted that it displayed a sign in its office window last July stating that a car could be rented from Friday noon through Monday noon for $13.95 a day.

An investigation by the marketing practices branch of the federal consumer and corporate affairs department showed that a vehicle could not be rented at a rate lower than $15.95 a day for the weekend period.

GAME PLAN WORKS, TONS OF POT SEIZED

MIAMI (AP) — A mother ship carrying more than 20 tons of marijuana is in U.S. Coast Guard hands after federal agents made a marijuana buy on the high seas.

"It was a beautiful game plan for going out and picking up a load of pot," detective Bill Sprague of the Martin County sheriff's office said of Sunday's seizure of the Montesuma, a 100-foot freighter.

The vessel, carrying Mexican registry and a crew of 12, was seized with "in excess of 20 tons on board " about 100 kilometres off Fort Pierce, Fla., by the cutter Shoalwater, coast guard spokesman Dave Tait said.

The operation started after the Florida Marine Patrol got suspicious of a cabin cruiser, which had been towed into a Martin County marina, because it no markings.

Searching the boat, officers found a sheet of instructions in Spanish. Sprague, who translated the instructions, said the paper explained the steps necessary to pick up a load of marijuana from the freighter.

He said the instruction sheet gave the location of the freighter, radio frequency to make contact with the ship and code words to use.

Using the instructions, three narcotics agents on board a 40-foot fishing boat made contact with the freighter Sunday morning. After unloading about 20 bales of marijuana weighing about 50 pounds each, the agents headed back to port.

The coast guard then seized the ship. Since it was in Bahamian waters, the coast guard first got permission from the the Bahamian government.

NANAIMO EYES NEW MOORAGE

Marina facilities in Nanaimo may be doubled.

A plan developed by the Nanaimo Harbor Commission and the federal public works department, will provide an additional 100 mooring spaces for commercial fishboats during the winter with the spaces being used by pleasure craft during the summer months.

The federal government has been asked to fund the estimated $1.6 million project under the Small Boat Harbours Act.

"The city enjoys substantial benefits from the commercial fishing fleets and recreational boaters and it is important we improve the present marina to accommodate growing demands," he said.

In addition to the marina expansion, there is provision for private facilities which could add another 170 berths, and a seaplane moorage.

CRASH FOUND

A Canadian Forces helicopter hoped to to land a ground party today to examine the wreckage of a plane carrying two Ottawa men.

Bad weather hindered attempts to reach the site Sunday.

The wreckage of the single-engine Grumman American plane, lost 21 days ago on a flight from Penticton to Victoria, was located Saturday on a mountainside near Stave Lake, about 30 kilometres north of Mission, by a helicopter which lowered a crewman to the site.

However, because of heavy snow, he was unable to determine if there were any bodies in the wreckage, a search and rescue spokesman said.

Aboard the plane were pilot Abou Ammo, 21, and passenger Douglas Craig, 23, who set out from Ottawa in a rented plane to hunt for jobs in western Canada.

"It was an adventure as well as a job hunt," the spokesman said. He said the aircraft did not have an electronic locator transmitter.

No Rhodesian Progress

SALISBURY (CP) — Foreign Secretary David Owen of Britain and U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance talked with white and black Rhodesian leaders for almost three hours today without apparent progress toward arranging an all-party Rhodesian conference.

Owen and Vance met Prime Minister Ian Smith and the three black partners in the interim government in a suburban mansion while several thousands blacks chanted and waved placards outside.

When the visiting ministers and the Rhodesian leaders took a break for lunch, the demonstrators surged into the street, blocking traffic as Bishop Abel Muzorewa, one of the three black leaders, was driven away.

The demonstrators opposed the U.S.-British plan for an all-party Rhodesian conference that would include leaders of guerrillas based outside the country.

They carried placards reading: "Down with Britain and America's conference," and "Go home, Owen." The demonstrators belonged to Muzorewa's United African National Council, one of the three groups in the interim government's executive council.

U.S. offiicials said participants in the morning meeting stated their views but there was no indication of any shift in position.

The U.S. and British envoys, who reject the internal settlement reached by Smith and the three black leaders, have won agreement for an all-party conference from guerrilla leaders based outside Rhodesia. They have also received a cautious endorsement from South Africa.

But it appears unlikely that Vance and Owen will get Smith and his three black associates to negotiate with guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

Bishop Muzorewa, one of the three black members of the executive council, said the council will be "stubborn, firm and uncompromising" in its opposition to any changes in the blueprint for Rhodesia's transition to black rule which he, Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau signed with Smith last month.

CITY MAN SHOOTING VICTIM

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have identified Brian Vincent Swift, 40, of Victoria as the man fatally shot Friday night in a house here.

Police said Martin John Aalto, 44, also of North Vancouver, has been charged with second-degree murder and is to appear in court.

couldn't stop but would notify the Canadian coast guard.

The Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt notified the Oak Bay police, who alerted the Oak Bay Search and Rescue volunteers.

The 36-foot pleasure cruiser Hapi-Hari went to the rescue and found the boat drifting two miles southeast of Trial Island.

Manning the Hapi-Hari were her owner Harry Horton, his son Dave, Stuart Fraser and his son Ian, Keith Pittam and two off-duty policemen, Sgt. Jack Bryan and Const. Ron Morgan.

"They were in pretty bad shape when we found them," the elder Fraser said today. "We had to pull them out of the boat."

Fraser said the weekend incident is about the 40th rescue carried out by the volunteers since the group was organized about a year ago.

And, in White Rock, a 73-year-old man with two cracked ribs who rowed 11 hours after his outboard motor broke down Saturday says he is going to sell his boat.

"That's not going to happen to me again," said James Dick Sunday after being picked up from a beach where he had spent Saturday night. "One round like that is enough.

Dick, who cracked his ribs in an accident at his Richmond, B.C., home earlier in the week, was fishing Saturday when a gear broke in the outboard of his small aluminum boat, forcing him to row through 3-metre waves.

"I rowed that boat 11 hours to get to land," he said. "I had to fight that wind. If you stopped for just a minute you'd go back maybe 20 feet."

After reaching the beach, Dick took a few hours rest and then set out along the beach, walking about two miles before a search and rescue hovercraft picked him up early Sunday.

Get More Students

NEW YORK (AP) — Foreign enrolment at colleges and universities in the United States climbed past the 200,000 mark last year. A survey by the Institute of International Education shows there were 203,000 non-immigrant students from more than 150 countries at 3,200 accredited institutions in the U.S. in the 1976-77 academic year, an increase of 24,000 over 1975-76.

MPs Are All Set To Go to the Polls

MPs also likely will approve the Petroleum Administration Act today, ensuring the Syncrude consortium gets international prices for Alberta oil sands oil regardless of the domestic price.

After the Senate meets Tuesday night to deal with these new laws the government should be in a position, as far as Legislation goes, to call the general election MPs have been anticipating for weeks.

Walter Baker, Progressive Conservative House leader, said in an interview Friday his party would give snap approval to both bills and he expected the election announcement "anytime next week."

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House leader, said his caucus will oppose the anti-strike bill during a debate that "I don't think will last very long."

Knowles said he expects an announcement Thursday of a June 19 election unless Prime Minister Trudeau decides to agree with some Liberals who want it put off until July.

Both opposition parties put obstacles in front of government attempts last week to get passage of the postal bill which Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the 23,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers, announced as provocative when it was introduced a week ago.

However, Conservative MPs will not even request a recorded vote on the bill today, Baker said. And Knowles said he was not sure whether NDP members would and even if they do, the 16-member caucus has no hope of defeating the bill.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberals 137; Conservatives 88; NDP 16; Social Credit nine; independent three, vacant 11.

After the postal and petroleum bills are passed by the Commons, MPs are expected to continue debate on the budget which began last Wednesday and could go until Thursday night.

Young Girl Sacrificed

DELHI (Reuter) — A three-year-old girl was sacrificed in a tribal rite in a village in the central Indian state of Madhya Pradesh, Home Minister P. N. Tripathi told the state assembly in Bhopal. He said the girl was covered with logs and set afire.

Election By End Of Week?

DUNCAN — Prime Minister Trudeau may call a federal election by the end of this week, Justice Minister Ron Basford told a weekend Liberal fund-raising rally here.

"The chances are we will be into an election by the end of the week," Basford said at the luncheon, sponsored by the Cowichan-Malahat-The Islands Liberal Association and attended by about 30 of the party's faithful, including candidate nominee Mike Coleman.

Basford, who will not seek re-election, said Trudeau would have called an election last Friday but was blocked by interference on the part of Progressive Conservative MP John Diefenbaker. Basford said Diefenbaker failed to give his consent to a Liberal bill that required unanimous consent of the House to make it illegal for postal workers to strike during an election.

He described the climate between B.C. and Ottawa as the best it has been in 30 years and attributed much of the co-operation to federal spending in the province. He mentioned the $11.5 million for redevelopment of Victoria's port and harbor, the $1.3 billion reduction in sales tax and the $2.19 million outlay on agriculture and regional development.

'STUPID OFFENCE'

Drunkenness and a domestic dispute were no excuse for a break-in at a downtown shop last year, county court judge Montague Drake said today.

He sentenced Brian Nelson Offer, 27, of Victoria to four months in jail for what he described as a stupid offence. Offer pleaded guilty March 14 to breaking and entering and theft of money at Hobbitt House Antiques, 536 Yates, on Feb. 11, 1977.

Court was told Offer smashed a window and took some money and was caught shortly after. He was on probation at the time and has a record for similar offences some years ago.

Winner Ryan with his hand lifted by loser Garneau

It's Now Up To Ryan . . .

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC — Quebec Liberals have gambled on a craggyfaced newspaper editor with conservative social views and an "authoritarian" reputation to lead them back into power and defeat the Quebec independence movement.

It is now up to Claude Ryan to prove he can make the transition into active politics successfully.

He takes over the party leadership after an enormous media build-up across the country that cast him as the Great White Hope of Canadian federalists.

Ryan admits these expectations are almost impossible to satisfy and cautions English Canadians that Quebec's problems "have not melted away" now that the convention is over.

Ryan faces no easy task as he assumes the Liberal leadership. First, he must heal divisions in the party that emerged during the three-month leadership race against Raymond Garneau.

Garneau supporters took their defeat hard Saturday. There is evident bitterness toward the Ryan camp and professions by some Garneau organizers that they will never work on Ryan's behalf.

Ryan must also prove he can be an effective party leader without holding a seat in the Quebec national assembly. While the lack of parliamentary responsibilities will allow him to work on party organization, he cannot go too long without a seat in the house or his credibility will suffer.

As a political neophyte, the former Le Devoir publisher will have to work closely with the parliamentary wing of the party and listen to advice from Liberals at all levels.

Yet he had the reputation at Le Devoir of being an inflexible and autocratic decision-maker who lacked diplomacy in his dealings with people.

He now pledges to steer the party away from its traditional image as a backroom-controlled, establishment institution. "We must offer (Quebecers) the guarantee of a clean and honest party, a democratic and transparent party, which truly belongs to its members and no one else," he told delegates in his convention speech.

But with much of the old Liberal establishment supporting him during his leadership campaign, Ryan gives the appearance to more skeptical observers of an old-school Quebec politician who can't match the democratic credentials of a Rene Levesque.

While preaching more modern democratic values, Ryan still represents a link with Quebec's past. A deeply religious man who worked 17 years for the Catholic Action movement, his traditional social views strike a responsive chord with the older generation of Quebecers.

The real challenge he faces is to sell younger Quebecers on the view that a strong Quebec nationalism can flourish within a Canadian federal system.

Anti-Jewish Plot?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charlie Chaplin's body was stolen from its Swiss grave last month not for ransom but because he was Jewish — and his widow was promptly told where the body had been taken, the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner reported today.

James Bacon, a Hollywood reporter for the newspaper, quoted a source close to the Chaplin family as saying, "The theft of Charlie's body from his grave is strictly a matter of religion and nothing else. No ransom was demanded and Lady Chaplin was told immediately where she could find the body."

Bacon said he did not know what Mrs. Chaplin had done with the body. She could not be reached for comment.

Bacon said his source said non-Jewish families whose relatives were buried in the cemetery at Corsier-Sur-Vevey opposed the presence of Chaplin's body and removed it. Chaplin, who was born a Jew, died Christmas Day at age 88.

But Fermand Volet, mayor of Corsier-Sur-Vevey, said today there are no restrictions on who can be buried at the cemetery and that several other Jews have been buried there.

IN A HONDA, MY STUDENTS FEEL AS CONFIDENT AT 30 AS I DO AT 100MPH.
As told by P. Christianson, Driving Instructor/Racing Driver.

"I used to race CanAm cars professionally, now I race a Honda for fun on the weekends. But my main business is teaching driving... safe driving, defensive driving. And the Honda helps us teach it."

Just for the record, from Monday to Friday you use a Honda to teach young people safe driving and then on the weekends you race that same Honda? "That's right."

How do you relate one to the other? "Well, they may seem like opposite ends of the stick, but they're not. It's a matter of confidence. Whether it's on the track or street a driver should have confidence in his ability to handle the car." How does Honda rate in this area? "On a driving scale of confidence from 1-10, I'd rate Honda 10. It just reeks of confidence."

"When students first get into a car, they're like a duck out of water, they're used to walking, not driving. Many cars tend to scare them a bit, but they gain confidence very quickly in a Honda. The front wheel drive is superb. The clutch engages very smoothly, so that even a novice driver doesn't go bunny-hopping down the road. And the visibility has to be the best of any car I can think of, so it's very easy to park. Many of our students end up buying Hondas after they have finished the course. The car has a phenomenal reputation among young people."

There you have it. You can take Peter Christianson's word for it, but we'd sooner have you see for yourself. Just take the time to go and take a test drive.

You'll soon see why in just four short years the Honda Civic has become the second best selling car* in all of Canada. HONDA

"Because the visibility is so good, parallel parking is no problem. You can see what you're doing, there's no guessing."

Chorus of Change and Reform

British Columbians seem to care the least of all Canadians about the national unity debate. Perhaps it is because the discussion takes the low road — along the lines of "Rene Levesque is a traitor" or "Let Quebec go, we don't need her."

Louis Demsmarais, chairman of Canada Steamship Lines in Montreal and head of a Quebec Canadian unity group, gave a speech recently to an American audience which is also useful to Canadians who may not be aware of a few basic facts of history or the depth of feeling in Quebec on the issues. Some excerpts:

Perhaps the best way to explain what is going on in our country is to look at the situation in its historical perspective. And, since the present situation is the direct result of events in Quebec's dissatisfaction with the status quo as well as the way to which the majority of French-Canadians perceive themselves and their relationship with the rest of Canada.

Following the conquest of New France, almost everyone of any consequence in the colony returned to the mother country leaving behind a population of French-speaking fur trappers and farmers with only the clergy to provide any semblance of education, guidance and leadership.

Yet, somehow they thrived. Their population grew at an extraordinary rate. They retained their language and they maintained their traditions — some of which originated in France, some of which they developed themselves.

To their way of thinking, they were the original and only true Canadians outside of the Indians. They had no ties and no loyalities to any other country with the result that their commitment to Canada was total and absolute, in contrast with the English who remained linked by close colonial ties to Great Britain.

Their territory (the French-Canadians') was, of course, Quebec or Lower Canada as it was known at the time. Upper Canada, now Ontario, belonged to the English. In the French-Canadian view, any dealings between Lower and Upper Canada were based on a one-to-one relationship. They were equal partners — a situation which became enshrined in law by the Act of Union in 1841. But the coming of Confederation in 1867 changed all that.

Suddenly, Lower Canada acquired two additional English partners. Others followed until, by 1905, what had started out as a 50-50 partnership between English and French Canada had deteriorated to the point where Quebec was a minority in an eight-to-one situation with English Canada holding all the aces.

To many Quebecers, this was clearly a perversion of the original arrangement. In their view, the only satisfactory solution was either to re-negotiate the original partnership or to withdraw from it altogether and proceed as an independent entity.

It is this interpretation of history, for example, which has led many Quebecers to view the Federal Government as the instrument through which English Canada established control over Quebec. In their minds, the federal government is almost completely dominated by English-Canadian interests — despite the fact that the present prime minister and many of his cabinet colleagues are French-Canadians from Quebec. . . .

But the last straw — the one that may have broken the back of Confederation as we now know it — was probably indifference.

Since before Confederation, French Canada has felt itself almost totally ignored by the rest of the country except as a quaint anachronism, a place to be pacified with sops and tokenism, but nothing to be taken too seriously. The hopes and aspirations of French-Canadians seemed to be thought unimportant by the vast majority of anglophones who appeared to believe that if French Quebecers wanted to succeed they could learn English and get a job in an English milieu just like any other self-respecting Canadian. If they weren't prepared to make that kind of effort then they should stay on the farm and stop complaining.

People in Quebec have come to the conclusion that if they are to survive as a cultural, social and political entity — as a nation if you wish — they will have to act alone. . . .

What final form this act of self-preservation will assume still remains to be seen, but I should point out that the separatist option is not a new idea in Quebec. Separatist movements have existed in the province off and on for nearly 100 years. But this time it's different.

The election of a provincial government openly dedicated to the withdrawal of Quebec from Confederation as it has existed for more than 100 years obviously meant that something very basic had gone wrong. This realization, in turn, caused people to begin questioning attitudes and institutions which, for years, they had taken for granted. At the same time, individual voices of discontent in other parts of the country — which had been virtually ignored for decades — swelled into a chorus calling for change and reform.

What I am talking about here is a virulent new kind of regionalism in Canada that simply will not be denied.

As alarming as this trend away from centralization may be to many avowed federalists, it is beginning to look like the most universally acceptable way out of our present predicament.

And it may not be such a bad solution at that. Because, paradoxically enough, the shift toward stronger regional governments may actually strengthen the bonds that tie us together as a nation.

The thrust of central government planning and legislation has all too often been based on a statistical analysis of some particular aspect of human existence, resulting in measures directed toward the lowest common denominator.

Whether or not there is any way in which this newly-emerging regionalism will be able to dovetail with the nationalistic objectives of Quebec remains to be seen. There are signs, however, that the Parti Quebecois may be moderating its stand somewhat.

The course of future events will depend to a large extent on the form this definition finally takes. If it is too extreme or intransigent it will almost certainly produce a powerful reaction in English Canada. This could be disastrous.

If, on the other hand, it is sufficiently moderate there is an outside chance that it may strike a responsible chord in other parts of the country where there is growing pressure for change. Under these circumstances, it is even possible that Quebec — in attempting to redefine its relationship with the federal government and the other provinces — may eventually come up with a constitutional formula which is sufficiently acceptable in other disaffected areas of the country to form the basis of serious negotiations leading to a new Canadian constitution. I admit that this may seem far-fetched, but if nothing else it may serve to illustrate just how fluid the Canadian situation has become in the past year or so.

There are now encouraging signs that, for the first time in almost 100 years, men of good will in Canada are seriously preparing to get down to the business of bridging that distance once and for all. We are in a state of metamorphosis and whether we emerge as a moth or a butterfly will depend entirely on our ability to mature as a people.

This is going to take time; and it's going to take commitment. But above all, it is going to require new attitudes and a new spirit of generosity on the part of all Canadians.

The debate is just beginning and it is certain to become hot and furious before it is finally resolved. But then, as you well know, you can't bind a country together with hammer and nails. If it is to endure it must pass through the heat of the crucible. And the bonds that unite it must be welded, not glued.

FRED CLEVERLEY

Mayor or a Ribbon-cutter?

WINNIPEG — Four months before he unexpectedly and abruptly vacated the mayor's office that had been his for more than two decades, Steve Juba warned Winnipeg voters that the provincial government was moving to emasculate the office, turning the mayor of Canada's fourth largest city into nothing more than a ribbon cutter and a hand shaker.

Juba surprised many Winnipeggers when he did not seek re-election last October. His successor, Robert Steen, is already locked in a death struggle to prevent Juba's prediction from coming true.

Steen is fighting for the last vestige of political power. Opposing him is the majority of city council, members of the Independent Citizens Election Committee (ICEC), a loosely-formed coalition of Liberals and Conservatives who profess to oppose party politics at the political level.

In the four months since the last election, this group has already piloted one of its own members, Robert Bockstael, into the powerful chairmanship of the executive policy committee, a job formerly held by the mayor, has proposed paying Bockstael a $30,000 annual salary (equal to the mayor's) and intends to seek provincial approval to have Bockstael sit on the formerly apolitical board of commissioners.

No Duties

Winnipeg has, as predicted by Juba, elected a mayor who has no duties except ribbon-cutting and handshaking, and is paying for a man who has the real political power normally held by the mayor, but was not even on the election ticket.

If Winnipeg is not satisfied with the situation, they can thank the previous provincial govenrment and its long-standing feud with Juba. The problems facing Winnipeg's city government go back over two previous provincial administrations.

Early in 1960, then-premier Duff Roblin brought in a metropolitan form of government to take over common services required by the 13 cities, towns and municipalities that formed greater Winnipeg. Roblin, it would appear, made just two mistakes in the formation of this new government. Police and fire, the most costly departments of the city of Winnipeg were not included as metro services, leaving the city of Winnipeg to pay for services that were required well beyond the city's borders, and Juba was not chosen as the first, appointed metropolitan government chairman.

The confrontations between Winnipeg and metro that followed set the pattern for yet another change, the unification of the entire city under one council. This solution was put into law in 1971 by Premier Ed Schreyer's New Democratic Party administration.

While Schreyer argued the cost-saving features of amalgamation, features which never came to pass, there were many suspicions that the new form of government proposed by his party were designed to expand the NDP presence on Winnipeg city council across the metropolitan area.

The new government as proposed by Schreyer would not see the mayor elected at large, but rather chosen from the largest single political group on council. In short, party politics were about to emerge on the Winnipeg municipal scene.

Schreyer's plan failed on two counts. The dynamic Juba, never a party man, used his personal power to intimidate the premier into allowing a "first-time-only" election of the mayor by all the people.

Juba demonstrated what had been one of the major objections Roblin had to total unification — that the mayor could be elected from a larger power base than the premier.

In addition, Winnipeg voters rejected outright the attempt to introduce party politics at a municipal level. The only recognized political party to field candidates in the first election was the NDP, and they were soundly defeated. Elected were members of ICEC who campaigned on a nonpartisan platform, but who, once in office, acted exactly like a party, freezing non-members out of all committee positions.

And since the NDP was not elected at the municipal level, its provincial brethren were unwilling to extend the financial support Winnipeg city council wanted. Juba was quoted at the time as saying the city had received a baby on its doorstep, knew who the father was, and because of this wanted support.

High on the city's shopping list was a share of what city council members called the "growth taxes," gasoline, liquor and other items which produced much of the provincial revenue. But during the seven years of the Schreyer government, the city was never able to sell its case. It rejected the provincial counter-offer to give it the right to impose its own surcharge taxes in these fields.

The controversial City of Winnipeg Act appeared at nearly every legislative session for amendment, but it was not until 1977 that amendments which seemed to be aimed directly at the mayor's power were introduced.

The reason was Juba. Although the original act gave the mayor only limited powers, Juba often exceeded them. With a flair for the public mood, he had beaten the provincial government on several issues, including one in which he humiliated the public works minister who had not obtained a building permit from the city to construct a public washroom outside the legislature. The mayor towed a portable toilet to the site so everyone could see what he considered to be an appropriate office for the minister.

Exceeded Powers

Juba also won a round on the fogging of mosquitoes by abandoning the city's entire fogging fleet of 16 trucks on the legislative grounds and daring the premier to take the responsibility for the danger to health and the discomfort of Winnipeg citizens.

Last spring the province struck back, introducing amendments which stripped the mayor of whatever power was left. Juba spoke out loudly on behalf of himself and his successors, but to no avail. They were passed and Juba bowed out of municipal politics. He was replaced by Steen who beat the only ICEC representative in the race for the job.

The ICEC committee members lost no time in taking advantage of the new law to freeze Steen out of any positions of power.

The future of Winnipeg's mayor will not be decided in new municipal elections. The future will return to the legislature where the new Conservative government will have to decide whether Winnipeg electors get a chance to choose a mayor or a ribbon-cutter.

Golf Course Goof

Statements made by Ald. John Mika last week regarding the Saanich 1978 golf course budget received wide press coverage. Since the statements were totally untrue, you might be interested in the facts.

The statements were that we had "covertly enriched" the budget, that we "were spending over $¾ million" and that we were "spending more on the golf course than on roads." I note that Mr. Ben Pires immediately jumped on the bandwagon with the inanity of the week when he said "golf is a game only the rich can afford." Right there is the raison d'etre for municipal golf.

"Covert enrichment" is political jargon for getting more money by under-the-counter fiddling. The accusation came after staff had suggested we complete certain elements of the five-year improvement program in 1978 instead of over two years. There was no enrichment; the work was planned and approved three years ago and was reviewed in 1977 budget meetings at length.

The statement that the municipality is spending "over $¾ million on the course" is a sensationalized exaggeration since it creates the impression in the mind of the taxpayer that his taxes are being used for this purpose.

The total sum involved for 1978 in both operating and capital accounts is $691,380. On the operational account, expenditures are $286,380 and revenues (from the golfers) are $332,300 leaving a surplus of $45,920 which will cover the course improvements now approved for this year. On the capital account we have a budget of $360,000 for the pro-shop, the driving range and the clubhouse improvements.

Of this amount, $120,000 comes from provincial grants and $40,000 from a contribution from the club members. The balance of $200,000 will be capitalized over a 10-year period and will be financed from future earnings. We do not expect any costs to be taken from general tax revenue.

The third statement that we are spending more on the golf course than on roads is ludicrous. The golf course operation makes little or no demands on tax revenues. As for roads expenditures, the budget has yet to be struck but budget proposals are for $1.5 million made up of $445,000 maintenance, $400,000 capital construction and some $600,000 previously approved work remaining from the 1975 referendum.

Ill-founded claims that one aspect of recreation is getting preferential treatment serve no useful purpose but only create disharmony and mistrust. There are many recreational needs yet to be met, particularly west of Douglas Street. Our ability to meet those needs is not fostered by political gamesmanship. — Ald. Ian Cass, Saanich.

Timber-r-r-r!

Saanich is now on at least its 12th draft of a tree-cutting bylaw. How many residents realize just how far they are proposing to go?

Basically the bylaw says that if you have less than an acre you can cut down two trees a year; above an acre, five trees. Any trees beyond this require a permit.

That sounds fine. Two (or five) trees a year should be enough for anybody. As Mr. David Harper in a memorandum to the mayor puts it: "One only pays . . . for excessive (or commercial) cutting, or for cutting on whim."

But wait. The bylaw says what a tree is. It is any woody plant over 16 feet three inches high or 5.9 inches or more in diameter.

If you look at any lot with untouched forest on it it is easy to find spindly saplings, an inch or so in diameter, but over 16 feet high.

And not just saplings. You will find lots of Douglas firs with wild honeysuckle growing up and strangling them. It often reaches as high as the Douglas fir grows.

Well, the honeysuckle is a woody plant, and certainly more than 16 feet high. But it too is a tree under the bylaw. Remove a sapling and a honeysuckle, and you will need a permit to remove anything else, because according to "the people who know best" you are cutting on whim.

Suppose you next want to cut down a two-foot ten-inch diameter cedar. Not the beautiful and useful specimen that shades your patio, but the useless one that you must get rid of in order to have your greenhouse, or orchard, or vegetable bed.

Under the bylaw the permit to cut it down will be over $400. You may think this is ridiculous. You may even think it illegal because it confiscates the entire value of the timber, and more.

The proponents of the bylaw say the $400 is really quite moderate. Scarcely noticeable. To quote Mr. Harper again: "The replacement value of that tree, calculated using the International Society of Arboriculture scale, is $8,711. Thus the fee is only about five per cent of the value of the tree."

If a valuation were being made of a tree in a park I would agree with this. But should it apply to every tree in Saanich? Among other improvements suggested for the bylaw is one that would say no permit is required where a householder replaces the cut tree with another.

The response to that one from Saanich has been quite uncompromising. Mr. Harper: "The suggestion is just what the bylaw was introduced to reduce — the 'cut now, landscape later' syndrome. Replacing a 300-year-old cedar with a two-year-old exotic is hardly an equitable substitution."

So there you have it. If you want to get rid of that cedar in your back yard so as to have your orchard or whatever, you are not only being inequitable (to whom?) but you are suffering from a syndrome.

The bylaw is in fact a gross and impudent invation of our right to enjoy our own back yards. I hope that your readers will up and fight it. — H. M. Thornton, 5460 Alderley Road.

Saanich, axe that bylaw.

Not Quite True

On April 1 you published an article by W. A. Wilson titled Berger Gets a Raspberry, which sharply criticized the Mackenzie Valley pipeline inquiry report, by Justice Thomas Berger. Mr. Wilson reviews a review of the report, according to the article, which originally appeared in the Canadian Journal of Economics, by economist Jack Stabler. Mr. Stabler's chief complaint seems to be that the report is inadequate because it does not include sufficient research information to substantiate the conclusions which Justice Berger draws.

On checking the Canadian Journal of Economics review, I find that you or Mr. Wilson omitted one important fact, which shows how inadequate the comments are. Mr. Stabler states, at the outset of his review, that it is based on the first volume of the report only. If he had waited for the second volume, which was published early this year and is now available in the bookshops, he would have found that his criticisms are groundless, since the second volume contains the kind of research material which he found missing in the first.

Mr. Wilson neglected to mention that the review he was commenting on dealt only with the first volume, compounding the inadequacies of Mr. Stabler's review.

Mr. Justice Berger's fine report in two volumes is a model for environmental, social and economic impact studies so lacking in Canada and deserves better treatment than that given in Mr. Wilson's article. I hope this letter will help to correct the unfortunate impression it may have had. — Edith Adamson, 303-1466 Dallas Road.

An Insult

Such derogatory remarks as those made recently about Canadians by MLA George Mussallem should be well-remembered by the people he represents in his riding at the next provincial election. What an insult at a time when the issue of Canadian unity is so uppermost in many minds! This kind of talk from an elected servant of the people deserves a severe public reprimand from the premier, Bill Bennett. Too many of our MLAs are apt to shoot their mouths off, evidently without consulting their leader. — Griff Owens 31-880 Vernon Avenue.

By CLAUDE ADAMS

WASHINGTON — The once-radiant American dream of splitting the atom to provide unlimited peaceful energy is turning sour. Cost, red tape and public fears are slowly killing the "nuclear option."

Experts who once envisaged a nation dotted with a thousand atom-powered generating stations, free of noise and pollution and even re-creating their own fuel as they light up the country, are now fighting a rearguard action.

"Like the poor soul at the bottom of the heap in a tavern brawl," is how Carl Goldstein of the atomic industrial forum mournfully describes the nuclear program.

The U.S. now has 69 nuclear power plants operating for commercial purposes, which together produce about 50,000 megawatts. This is roughly equivalent to the combined power needs of the populations of New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and Philadelphia. (Canada, by comparison, generated about 4,000 megawatts from its handful of reactors in Ontario and Quebec.)

By the most optimistic calculations, this nuclear plant network will grow to about 150 by 1985, supplying less than 10 per cent of the country's energy needs at that time. And that, barring economic or social miracles, will be the nuclear plateau.

"It's hard to see any dramatic turnaround," says an industry spokesman. "There won't be any major breakthroughs for years to come."

The Carter administration, torn between a powerful coalition of environmentalists on one hand and the utilities on the other, is in a terrible political quandary. While warning of another oil crisis in the 1980s, the White House is hardly willing to defy the anti-nuclear lobby which is obsessed with such things as nuclear waste disposal, atomic catastrophes from reactor malfunctions, and the prospect of weapons-grade byproducts falling into terrorist or criminal hands.

No less devastating to the nuclear case are the enormous cost of building an atomic power station (as much as $2 billion), the construction time needed (about 10 years), the uncertainty of future energy requirements and the bureaucratic nightmare that utilities face in getting the necessary federal licensing for a nuclear facility.

Recently, while unveiling some relaxations in the licensing laws, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger conceded that the nuclear option is "barely alive" and tacitly confirmed what most experts already know — the nation's dependency on oil and gas will not be relieved in the foreseeable future.

The problems plaguing the nuclear program range from the petty to the profound:

☐ At a facility operated by the Tennessee Valley Authority in Alabama, a worker's protective galosh fell into the reactor. Worried that the errant shoe might plug the reactor's cooling system, the facility was shut down for 17 days while authorities made sure the shoe had disintegrated. The cost of the shutdown was $2.8 million. Quipped The new York Times, recalling an old ditty: "For want of a nail, the shoe was lost — for want of the shoe, the horse was lost."

☐ The Seabrook power station in New Hampshire, intended to supply 80 per cent of the state's power in the 1980s, has been undergoing bizarre birth pains. After 110 days of public hearings, an official of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) okayed the station's seawater cooling system, which would raise adjacent ocean temperatures by five degrees.

But after building had started, the official changed his mind. Work stopped. Then the official was overruled by his superior. Work started again. Then a lobby group took the EPA to court, claiming the last decision hadn't been reached through proper administrative steps. The court agreed. Now the future of the controversial project hangs in doubt, because the red tape had not been unravelled properly.

☐ Procedure, and persistent nitpicking, is the trump card of the anti-nuclear forces, as brash Michigan laywer Myron Cherry has amply proved. Cherry is the nemesis of the Consumer Power Co. whose Midland, Mich., generating plant is eight years behind schedule and five times over its original budget of $350 million.

Cherry, acting on behalf of local environmentalists and fishermen, fought the project every step of the way and though he didn't succeed in stopping it, he remained true to his philosophy to make building a nuclear plant "as painful and expensive as possible" so that the utility will reconsider the idea.

The technique was simple but effective: raise hundreds of small safety-related questions that the utility could not ignore under federal law, demand mountains of technical documents, and generally make life miserable for everybody. Once when he discovered that an opposing lawyer had a heart problem and was sensitive to loud noises, Cherry shouted his arguments out at the top of his voice. Another time, while suffering from a back ailment, he lay flat on his back on the courtroom floor and continued questioning witnesses.

"He's an obnoxious SOB but unfortunately, he's also the best trial lawyer I've ever seen," one foe commented.

In the end, Consumer Power threw up its hands and agreed to spend an additional $28 million on safeguards, just to be rid of him. Today, Cherry is the premier reactor-bashing attorney in the country, having represented clients in two dozen licensing battles from Rhode Island to Wisconsin.

☐ The strongest resistance to the building of nuclear plants is found in California, the nation's most populous state. Setting a possible precedent for other legislatures, California has enacted legislation that would forbid further construction of atomic plants until the federal government can prove, to the state's satisfaction, that it has developed a way to safely get rid of radioactive waste.

Waste disposal at the conventional reactors is perhaps the single biggest stumbling block to the nuclear program. At the present time, radioactive wastes are kept under 10 feet of water in so-called "swimming pools" near the reactors and nobody quite knows for sure what to do with them. Critics insist the dominant theme of the waste program is to "defer decisions to another time and place."

Pro-nuclear officials insist that technology will find a suitable answer for waste disposal in years to come, but this doesn't satisfy critics. As Tennessee Valley Authority director David Freeman noted recently: "Does this generation have the moral right to enjoy the benefits of nuclear power before it has built a reasonably safe nuclear trash can to safeguard future generations?"

Recently in Kern County, Calif., residents voted by a margin of 2-to-1 against a nuclear project that would have been the biggest in the country, and in the process handed Gov. Jerry Brown, an avowed anti-nuclearist, a major political triumph.

☐ The nuclear reactor industry appears to be on the verge of an economic collapse. The major manufacturers, including Westinghouse, General Electric and Combustion Engineering, have the combined capacity to produce 30 reactors a year but only nine new reactors have been ordered since 1975. Delays and cancellations have been much higher.

Meanwhile, existing plants have been breaking down so frequently that the average reactor only functions 50 to 60 per cent of the time, a woeful record by any electricity-generating standards.

Also, the cost of uranium has shot up, and supply is in question. All of these factors, and others such as tight credit, have prompted the utilities to effectively declare a moratorium on further nuclear growth, just when it appears the country most needs a major new energy source.

Until the oil embargo in 1974, nuclear power was a go-go industry in the U.S. Utilities were projecting a seven per cent annual increase in energy needs, and they geared their nuclear programs to meet these specific needs. Reactors were getting bigger and more expensive, and a predictable momentum had set in.

The embargo changed all that, the economic recession settled in, growth turned, money became tight, and the utilities suddenly found themselves with plants they didn't need.

So what does the future hold? Apart from some minor improvements in reactor efficiency, safety and how the dangerous byproducts of nuclear fission are disposed of, there's not much to look forward to in the coming decades. The industry is hopeful that the government will streamline the licensing process, cutting the red-tape period from 12 to 6½ years before a facility gets an official green light.

New atomic technology, notably nuclear fusion as a subparticle activity that would generate heat and steam to drive generators, is still too far away to offer much encouragement.

Fusion would require a financial commitment of as much as $1 billion a year for several years, as scientists learn how to control the high-temperature, high-density process of forcing subatomic particles together, creating enormous energy.

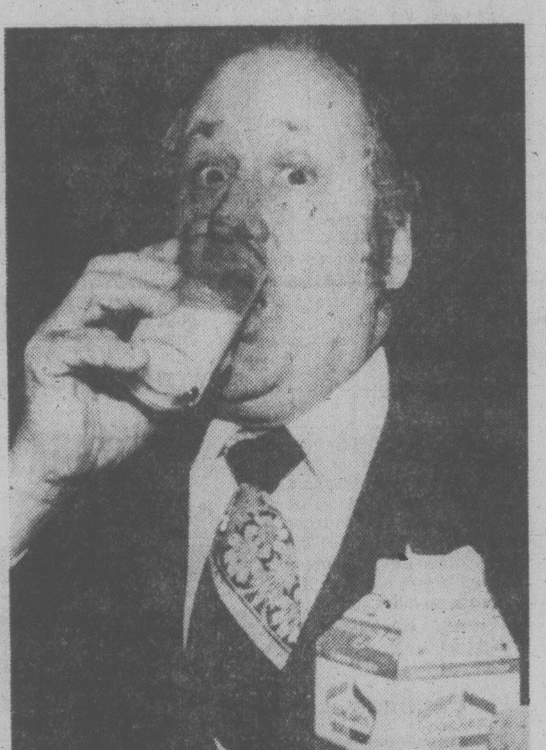
Meanwhile, the nuclear industry falters toward stagnancy, lending new meaning to Einstein's words: "The release of energy from the atom has changed everything about our world, except our way of thinking about it . . ."

Less Milk for Poor as Subsidy Dropped

LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA—The Conservatives and New Democrats both denounced the move in the House, while the Consumers' Association and Canadian Labor Congress attacked it from outside, but on April 1 Ottawa ended its subsidy of powdered skim milk.

According to Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, the decision to discontinue the program was based on a Statistics Canada survey "which shows that this subsidized product was not being used by the poor people it was intended for."



WHELAN . . . statistics misleading

Big difference

At first blush, the report of Statistics Canada's 1976 Urban Family Expenditure Survey does seem to support Whelan's claim.

It reports weekly purchases of powdered skim milk by the lowest-income 20 per cent of family units were little more than a third those of the upper-middle-income households 60 to 80 per cent of the way up the income scale.

But the survey also records that households in this fourth income quintile (as the 60 to 80 per cent grouping is known) are almost twice the size of those in the bottom group. What's more, there is a big difference in their composition.

While the bottom group includes large numbers of senior citizens, for instance, whose prime milk drinking years are far behind them, the upper-middle-income group consists largely of young families.

Since it is children who are the chief milk drinkers of the nation, the comparison between low and upper-middle-income groups should really be on a per child basis.

Adjusting, then, for the fact that the fourth quintile includes two-and-a-half times as many children as the bottom one, we find that its powdered skim milk purchases average 3.1 oz. per child per week, compared to 3.0 oz. for the bottom group.

In other words, what the survey actually tells us is that purchases of powdered milk per child by low and upper-middle-income families are remarkably similar.

What's more, since the survey also found that the higher-income group buys almost twice as much fresh milk as the low-income group, it tells us that per child powdered skim milk purchases represent almost twice the proportion of total milk purchases for low-income families as for upper-middle-class ones.

And that's a long way from Gene Whelan's claim that the "subsidized product was not being used by the poor people it was intended for."

Inefficient

Rather, what the survey results add up to is that the $13 million annual subsidy was providing the bulk of its benefits to higher-income families, but proportionally largest savings to the budgets of the poor — exactly what one would expect of a universal program.

Specifically, in order to get $1.5 million in benefits to low-income families it distributed a further $11.5 million to the rest of the population.

From a cost-efficiency standpoint, it's hard to argue that a program with that sort of won/lost record should not be permitted to expire.

But it is equally difficult to accept that poor families should get $1.5 million less income support this year than last.

For the past several years the Trudeau government has been talking about the need to shift from costly and inefficient universal approaches to selective ones directed to those in need.

But when it has acted, it hasn't been to recast or replace universal programs, but rather to eliminate them — universally.

There is no good reason, Prime Minister Trudeau noted at the recent First Ministers' Conference, "why those Canadians with high incomes should receive an oil subsidy."

So his government has been gradually phasing it out — for all Canadians.

Two years ago it suspended the annual indexation of family allowances — for rich and poor alike — and last fall it came within an ace of doing it again for the current year.

Likewise unemployment insurance cutbacks have been imposed on an across-the-board basis, rather than being related to previous levels of earnings, as they could well have been.

Price boost

Each such government move has drawn fierce parliamentary fire.

But the opposition attack has always been directed to preserving, universally, whatever the government was proposing to withdraw universally. While the special needs of the poor were invariably cited, it was always as a reason why the measure in question should be continued for all.

The end of the 34-cents-a-pound subsidy for powdered skim milk will mean a 40 per cent increase in its supermarket price as soon as the last of the subsidized stocks are exhausted.

For children in some poor families it will mean drinking less of it.

New York

As it shot upward at the opening, the Dow broke cleanly through the 800 level, erasing all of its losses since early January.

Analysts said the rally that began last week was feeding on itself, attracting additional waves of buying by investors anxious not to miss out on any further market gains.

The upsurge since late last week has been attributed in large measure to a rush of buying by investing institutions who had built up large reserves of cash.

But foreign investors also were said to be playing a significant role — especially today, with the depressed dollar in the midst of a strong rally against leading foreign currencies.

Blue chip and glamor issues, the weakest sector of the market until late last week, were standout performers for the second straight session. Eight of the 10 most active NYSE issues sported gains of better than a point.

Brokerage house stocks also thrived. The volume leader was Merrill Lynch and Co., parent company of the nation's largest brokerage house, up 1⅝ to $18⅞.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were broadly higher in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 395,100 shares, compared with 360,000 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

London

LONDON (CP) — Fears of a further rise in the British short-term interest rate sent the London stock market moderately lower today at the close of light trading.

The London Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 446.7, down 0.7.

Husky Oil

Husky Oil Ltd., of Calgary, is planning a major expansion of its Canadian heavy-oil plant facilities to meet increased demand, James Neilsen, company president, said.

Neilsen told the company's annual meeting that Husky wants Ottawa and the Saskatchewan government to study the prospects so a decision can be made on construction of its proposed heavy crude oil upgrading plant near Lloydminster, Sask.

He said the plant, with a 100,000-barrel-a-day output, would cost more than $520 million and would employ about 350 workers.

Nielsen also told shareholders that the company is considering buying a coal property with proven reserves in either western Canada or the United States.

As previously reported, Husky Oil had record earnings of $42.8 million in 1977, or $4.06 a share, in 1977, compared with $30 million, or $3.02 a share, in 1976. Sales and operating revenues were $620.4 million, up from $522.4 million in 1976.

Norcen Energy

Norcen Energy Resources Ltd., which was forced to curtail some of its diversified operations last year, anticipates improved earnings in the first quarter of 1978, shareholders were told today.

Edward Battle, president, told the annual meeting that income in the first three months should increase to $23 million from $21 million in the corresponding period last year.

However, he cautioned that the estimate is "not indicative of net earnings for the full year 1978 for a number of reasons, including the cyclical nature of certain segments of our operations and the impact of decisions rendered in 1977 and 1978."

As reported earlier, Norcen's net income before extraordinary items last year was $32.3 million or $1.52 a share compared with $31.0 million or $1.58 the previous year.

After extraordinary items, the loss applicable to common shares from continuing operations was $100,000 compared with a $34.0-million profit in 1976.

Control Data

Minneapolis-based Control Data said its net for the first quarter rose to $15.7 million, or 90 cents a share, from $12.9 million, or 75 cents a share, a year before. Revenue was $604.4 million, compared with $523 million in 1977.

Cartage Terminals Closing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Millar and Brown, one of Canada's largest cartage firms, will close five of its terminals — four of them in British Columbia — at the end of April, says a company spokesman.

He said terminals would be closed in Vernon, Kamloops, Nelson, Creston and Medicine Hat, Alta.

He said layoffs will be kept to a minimum as workers will be offered jobs at other locations. There are 19 employees at the Vernon terminal.

The spokesman said the closures were necessary to allow the company to keep its rates down.

"We either had to close down the terminals or increase our rates," he said.

Ripper Eludes $2.7M Dragnet

LONDON (Reuter) — The case of the Yorkshire Ripper, the elusive slayer of seven street-walkers in the grimy industrial towns of northern England, has become the costliest murder investigation in British history.

Investigators have spent at least $2.7 million in their 2½-year hunt for the Ripper, who has cast an uneasy pall over red light districts in the seedy Yorkshire towns of Leeds, Bradford, and Huddersfield, where one prostitute has taken to carrying an axe in her handbag as a precaution.

Some of the officers who have sought the Ripper for more than two years are beginning to fear that he will never be found—like the original Jack the Ripper, who mutilated six East London Prostitutes in the 1880s.

The Yorkshire killings began in October, 1975, with the murder of Wilma McCann, a 28-year-old prostitute in Leeds.

Five of the Ripper's six victims since then have been prostitutes—all viciously slashed about the head. The sixth, 16-year-old Jayne MacDonald, was a Leeds shopgirl murdered last June when she took a short cut through Chapeltown, the city's red light district.

The failure of police to stop the murders, despite a huge and costly effort, is beginning to irritate some Britons.

"Why can't they catch the Ripper?" asked the London Daily Express. Yorkshire businessmen and newspapers have put up a $20,000 reward in the hope of turning up a break in the case.

Police have visited 16,000 homes, checked 120,000 vehicles and taken more than 11,000 statements in the course of their inquiries. They have checked and eliminated 43,000 suspects.

But they get scant co-operation, say senior officers, from the tight-lipped prostitutes who work the depressed Yorkshire towns and have their own code of silence.

One prostitute told reporters that the Ripper actually had a beneficial effect on business—driving away the "amateurs," and leaving the field clear for the estimated 200 professional prostitutes of the three towns.

Although they have taken to carrying knives and working days, many of the girls pride themselves on taking the murders in their stride as a hazard of the trade.

All three of the psychiatrists who have examined the Ripper police dossier are convinced he is impotent with a pathological hatred of prostitutes. He tears their clothes to shreds and repeatedly stabs and batters his victims.

But in between murders—and the longest gap has been a year—the experts say he may lead a very normal life.

Chinese Boats Withdraw

TOKYO (AP) — About 140 Chinese fishing boats withdrew from Japanese-claimed territorial waters around the Senkaku Islands on Sunday but remained in the general area, Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said.

Japan, China and the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan all claim the tiny, uninhabited islands 400 kilometres southwest of Okinawa.

U.S. N-Powered Sensors Put in Himalayas in 1960s

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Prime Minister Morarji Desai told Parliament today that two U.S. nuclear-powered remote-sensing devices were placed in the Himalayas in the 1960s on a joint decision by the U.S. and Indian governments.

One device was abandoned and later lost on Mount Nanda Dewi near the Chinese border in 1965 but another was installed successfully on a neighboring peak in 1967, he said.

Desai's statement to Parliament followed a U.S. magazine report last week which broke the news that plutonium-powered sensors had been planted in the Himalayas by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

The prime minister said the Indian government had at the time fully approved the measure.

During a news conference in New York last Wednesday, an editor of the magazine Outside said the spying device was lost in an avalanche and might jeopardize the lives of "hundreds of thousands, maybe millions, of Indians," unless it was recovered.

He said the plutonium might be leaked into the headwaters of the Ganges River.

The magazine said the devices were intended to monitor Chinese atom tests.

But Desai made no mention of China, simply saying that the equipment carried into the Himalayan snows by skilled mountaineers was for "securing information about missile development."

The prime minister said the operations were carried out "predominantly by Indian personnel but under joint auspices and were in the know of, and with the approval, at the highest political level, of the government of India at that time."

He said the CIA was not resposible for the operations.

"There is no need to bring in the CIA," he said in reply to questions from members of Parliament.

Italian Prince Kidnap Plot Ends Quickly

KIEL, West Germany (AP) — A grandson of the late King Victor Emmanuel III of Italy was kidnapped by three armed men early today but was freed unharmed by police an hour later, authorities announced. The three kidnappers were arrested.

The victim was Prince Moritz von Hessen, 51, the interior ministry of Schleswig-Holstein state said.

Police were questioning him about his ordeal.

A spokesman said the three kidnappers surrendered and put up no resistance.

Police gave this account of the kidnapping:

Two armed men smashed a window of the prince's country home near Ploen and forced him at gunpoint to get out of bed and into his car. The two men drove him to a nearby forest where they had hidden their car. There they changed cars while a third member of the gang got behind the wheel of the prince's vehicle.

Meanwhile, the prince's family called the police who threw up roadblocks for 50 kilometres around the estate. The kidnappers' two-car convoy was stopped at one of these near the town of Husberg.

"They offered no resistance, and the prince was unharmed," said the spokesman.

The prince is the son of Prince Philipp von Hessen and Princess Mafalda, a daughter of the Italian king who abdicated in 1946 and died in exile in Egypt in 1947.

Prince Moritz is married and has four children.

Airport for Troops

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Transkei, dubbed by observers as the loneliest state in the world after breaking diplomatic relations with its only ally — South Africa — is to build an airport to bring in foreign troops and arms, Prime Minister Kaiser Matanzima says.

Chief Matanzima broke diplomatic relations with South Africa on last Monday as a result of a dispute involving a land claim.

South Africa recently granted Transkei independence under a program aimed at creating nine tribal homelands for its black majority while retaining the most and best land for its governing white minority. It has been the only country to recognize the new state.

Matanzima said a proposed harbor to be built by a French consortium and the airport meant that "arms and troops from other countries" could be brought to Transkei without touching South African soil.

He did not say where the troops would come from. He was speaking at a public meeting at Ramohlakoane, a black township near the white town of Matatiele, which is in the very fertile area claimed by Transkei.

After inspecting a guard of honor of the fledgling Transkei army, he said the territory wanted peaceful relations with its neighbors but could not allow itself to be cheated of land and its people's rights.

WASH. N-PLANT HITS 40B KW

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — The N Reactor at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation on th weekend became the first nuclear generating plant in the United States to reach the production mark of 40 billion kilowatts, says a spokesman for United Nuclear Industries.

The only dual-purpose reactor in the U.S. began its primary mission—production of plutonium for the U.S. government—in 1964 and began providing steam for power generation in 1966, UNI's Lynn Watson said.

He said a turbogenerating facility, built by the Washington Public Power Supply System adjacent to the reactor, is rated at 860,000 watts capacity.

Runaway Cable Car Turns Into Skiers' Death Trap

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A cable went slack, then popped from a pulley. As dozens of skiers hurtled through a snowstorm in a runaway cable car, the loose cable sliced into the car like a cheesecutter, crushing three men and a woman to the floor.

They died. About 30 others were injured in the Saturday accident, which occurred on Emigrant Mountain at Squaw Valley Ski Area in in below-zero Celsius temperatures, heavy snow and howling winds.

A second car with about 70 passengers, travelling up the mountain, jolted to a halt and dangled helplessly 150 feet above the ground.

It took seven hours to rescue everyone from the two cars. Rescuers crawled along cables and lowered the passengers through winds gusting to 100 kilometres an hour in a sling which one man said looked like "a big pair of gym trunks."

Some in the second car suffered frostbite but reported no serious injuries.

Metallurgists and engineers will inspect the cars and cables to try to determine the cause of the accident, said Terrence Ford, the resort's lawyer. Nobody was allowed on the mountain Sunday because of continuing blizzard-like conditions, he said.

Jim Mott, head of operations at the ski centre, was among the first to reach the wrecked car.

"There was some screaming," he said. "I knew we were in for a lot of trouble. One-fourth of the car collapsed onto 10 or 12 people. Three of those people were dead."

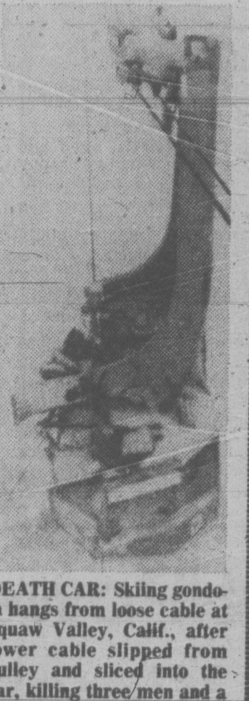
The car, making its last trip down the mountain for the day, lurched along two remaining cables, the loose one slashing into it, before the car caught on an emergency cable. It stopped 70 feet off the ground, said Bill Boardman, director of the Squaw Valley Ski Corp.



DEATH CAR: Skiing gondola hangs from loose cable at Squaw Valley, Calif., after lower cable slipped from pulley and sliced into the car, killing three men and a woman.

34 POLICE ON TRIAL

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Three senior British officers and 31 Chinese members of the Hong Kong police force went on trial today in one of the British colony's biggest corruption cases on record.

The three British superintendents and 31 Chinese, who include four chief inspectors, are charged with conspiracy to accept bribes and acting contrary to their public duties between 1970 and 1976.

The trial, expected to last about four months, opened with prosecutors saying that street hawkers and vice dens had to pay thousands of dollars in monthly "squeeze money."

One former police superintendent, who admitted making $875,000 through corruption, left for Spain after eight months in jail here in 1977 for having assets exceeding his official pay.

Six Wolves Take Off From Zoo

SEATTLE (UPI) — Six wolves escaped from the Woodland Park Zoo Sunday and caused apprehension among neighboring deer, sheep and ponies for a few hours before they were captured.

One female yearling wolf loped through the streets pursued by zookeepers in trucks and afoot. She was felled by a tranquilizer dart.

The wolves chewed through the steel-mesh fence around their yard to make their escape. Some apparently changed their minds and tried to dig their way back under the fence.

Millions of Fans For Aging Bond

LONDON (AP) — Superspy James Bond is 25 years old this week and despite a touch of overexposure there's life in the old boy yet.

"He's still being read by the millions," said Kingsley Amis, an authority on the world's best-known British Secret Service agent—No. 007—who was immortalized in the novels of the late Ian Fleming.

Bond sprang to life in the 1953 thriller Casino Royale, hero of a fictional fantasy complete with international espionage, high-stakes gambling and seductive women that captured the imagination of millions of readers.

Fleming's 12 full-length novels and five short stories have been read by more than 100 million people, and each book topped the best-seller list. Both John F. Kennedy and former CIA boss Allen Dulles were fans.

Then 007 went Hollywood. The 1967 movie version of the novel Dr. No brought another generation under Bond's charm and so far 11 titles have been filmed, each a continuous box office hit.

The first nine films grossed over $600 million worldwide in 15 years. Two are still in release, and the 12th film, For Your Eyes Only, is scheduled for release in the summer of 1979. Every movie sends books sales soaring again.

"The only risk," Amis said, "is that the public may feel saturated by the films."

But even 007—the double zeros meant licensed to kill—has his share of detractors.

To the Soviet Union, whose agents frequently jousted with Bond in bed and on the battlefield, there was nothing flip about 007 at all.

"The successor to the Nazi war criminals," said the Soviets in a 1965 verbal attack on Bond, one of many levelled at the superspy.

But tattered copies of Bond novels remain a hot item on the black market in Moscow, favorite reading among English-language students.

Bond experts see a great distinction between the 007 in the books and the 007 in the movies, personified by British stars Sean Connery and Roger Moore. Fleming had sought to make his protagonist a model Cold War espionage agent—unthinkingly patriotic.

Perhaps it was Bond's human qualities, underneath those nerves of steel, that allowed readers to react so strongly to him.

A good pistol shot, yes. Yet Bond wasn't the best marksman in the Secret Service. He smoked and drank too much—60 cigarettes and a half-bottle daily. He required constant training to keep his skills sharp.

The movie Bond, on the other hand, dazzles the cinema audience with a potpourri of outlandish gadgets each more sophisticated than the next—underwater cars in The Spy Who Lived Me, mini-helicopters outfitted with flame-throwers, air-to-air missiles and aerial mines in You Only Live Twice, and the Aston Martin DE5 from Goldfinger equipped with ejector seats, twin machine-guns and other exotic extras.

Swede Cars Are Cleaner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Swedish-built cars — the four-cylinder Volvo and the Saab 99 — have been named by the California Air Resources Board as the cleanest-running cars sold in the United States.

The ratings were based on pollution tests done in 1977 on 7,268 cars, board chairman Tom Quinn told a news conference.

He said the two top-rated cars, which were the only cars in the outstanding category, both have three-way catalytic converters.

Heading the very clean category and ranking right behind the Volvo and Saab 99 was the Ford Fiesta, the best-ranking U.S.-built car in terms of air pollution, Quinn said.

Quinn called the Lincoln Versailles, which came in at the bottom of the list, the dirtiest car in terms of air pollution. But he noted that the car meets California's strict anti-smog requirements, which are the toughest in the U.S.

Quinn said the anti-smog device used by Volvo made the car almost four times cleaner than required by state law.

The Volvo has a base sticker price of almost $7,000 while the Saab 99 sold for an average $8,000. The eight-cylinder Versailles has a base sticker price of more than $12,000. The Fiesta has a base sticker price of about $3,800.

Rounding out the board's top 10 cleanest cars were the Toyota Celica, Toyota Corona, Dodge Omni, Plymouth Horizon, Volkswagen Dasher, Datsun 200SX and Datsun 510.

The 10 dirtiest cars, in addition to the Lincoln Versailles, were the AMC Matador, Triumph TR-8, Pontiac Sunbird, Oldsmobile Starfire, Mercury Zephyr, Mercury Bobcat, Ford Pinto, Ford Mustang II and Ford Fairmont.

A total of 72 cars ranked in the very clean category, while 170 were in the clean range. Twenty vehicles were listed in the acceptable category, which was the lowest ranking.

"If a car does not meet our standards," Quinn said, "we stop it from being sold (in California)."

The board's rankings were based on three major pollutants emitted by automobiles — hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and nitrogen oxides.

'Sex-in-Chains Girl' Fled To Canada - Scotland Yard

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

LONDON — The celebrated "sex-in-chains girl" is believed to have fled to Canada, Scotland Yard said today.

Joyce McKinney, 27, and her boyfriend Keith May, 24, boarded an Air Canada jet going to Montreal and Toronto last Wednesday.

"The two of them used scribbled notes to tell me they were due to take part in a mimed play in Toronto," airline official John Noran told reporters.

"The girl was wearing granny glasses, a long dark coat and flowered dress," Noran said. "Her man friend was tall with dark hair. He was also wearing a coat and had blue-tinted glasses."

McKinney and May, both Americans, are missing on bail. They face trial May 2 on charges of kidnapping a Mormon missionary who claims he was bound in chains and forced to have sex with McKinney at a country cottage.

The two passengers on the Air Canada Flight 874 from Shannon "acted like deaf mutes," a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

The police are now trying to find out whether the two got off the plane in Montreal or Toronto and whether they still are in Canada.

Her parents live in North Carolina and her father is said to have been ill recently.

FBI already have said that the two could be extradited if caught in the U.S.

Police said the two failed to report to West Hendon police station, as required under terms of their bail, last Wednesday morning.

An "arrest on sight" order was issued by the police at the weekend and all ports were watched for the pair. But it now is believed they had got away earlier.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said a cab driver had reported taking a couple, with seven suitcases, to London's Paddington Station last Wednesday at 9:30 a.m.

The two answered the description carried in the Daily Mirror newspaper which showed photographs of May and McKinney in disguise. The photographs were sent anonymously to the newspaper along with an application form for a British visitor's passport.

A list of countries on the form reportedly carried a mark against Canada as well as Luxembourg and San Marino.

MOSLEMS ENGAGED IN ATTACKS

LONDON (AFP) — The Sunday Times says Sunni Moslem extremists have slain or wounded dozens of Syrian President Hafez Assad's friends and political allies this year.

The newspaper said intelligence sources have disclosed that in February the president's brother, Rifat Assad, and his wife were severely wounded by dissident officers and were flown secretly to Paris for treatment.

President Assad is of the minority Alawi Moslem sect, who the paper said the Iraqi-backed Sunnis, in a 75-per-cent majority, want to topple from power in favor of a more leftist, pro-Soviet government.

The sources said two Alawi leaders were killed recently, Ibrahim Naameh, a member of the Baath (Socialist) party and Yusaf Id, a relative of Gen. Muahmed Id, military commander of Syria's north.

Sun Gets a Push

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Jimmy Carter is expected to name a high-level panel to press the development of solar energy, according to administration sources.

Formation of the inter-agency committee, to be headed by Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, will be announced by the White House before the May 3 national Sun Day celebrations sponsored by environmental groups and solar advocates, sources said.

The formal domestic policy review of the government's solar programs is expected to relieve some of the mounting political fire the Carter administraton has drawn over what critics maintain is a widening split between what the White House says and what the energy department has done to boost solar energy.

DOE's budget request for fiscal 1979 asked Congress to provide $10 million less for solar energy programs than had been included in last year's budget.

SOCREDS ARE NOT PRO TORY

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett said Sunday that election fever caused Prime Minister Trudeau to say Friday that the four Western premiers were supporting the federal Progressive Conservative party.

Bennett said in a telephone interview from his home in Kelowna, B.C., that Trudeau's remark was wrong, and his Social Credit government has no intention of endorsing any party in a federal election.

The Western premiers, meeting in Yorkton, Sask., last week, had criticized the way the recent federal budget put pressure on the provinces to accept tax cuts, a move they said would damage federal-provincial co-operation and national unity.

Trudeau replied in the Commons that the premiers were "playing politics to help the leader of the Opposition" (Joe Clark).

Bennett said the Western premiers were concerned about the way the federal government offered the provinces subsidies for cutting provincial sales taxes.

The matter was not discussed at the first ministers' conference in February and Bennett said this is another example of the "short-term, short-sighted approach" the federal government has taken to economics.

WCB Issues Bills For $185M Deficit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Workers' Compensation Board has sent bills totalling $5.7 million to three companies and the provincial government as it tries to make up a $185.1 million pension deficit, said board spokesman Grant McMillan.

The deficit is the amount of unfunded liability on current and past board pension funds which the board expects to owe, according to actuarial calculations.

The board asked the provincial government, in a letter dated April 6, to pay $2.5 million within 30 days.

Canadian Pacific Ltd., along with its subsidiaries, was asked to pay $2.4 million.

McMillan said similar letters were sent to Burlington Northern and Canadian National Railways.

The companies singled out to pay in lumps sums now pay the board only the costs they incur to the board.

Other B.C. companies pay on an assessment basis within their industries.

The board said the pension fund was undermined by inflation and legislation during the past few years.

Legislation in 1968 tied board pensions to the consumer price index and further legislation in 1974.

SKIMPY TURNOUT

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — Voters in the vast segregated township of Soweto have all but ignored a local election heralding what the white-ruled government billed as a new deal for its black residents.

Official figures released today show that only six per cent of the electorate cast ballots in the election, held to choose a new local council for the township where more than 500 people died in an upheaval of black protest in 1976.

Good news for hearing aid wearers.

Activair™ lasts twice as long as the battery you're using.

New Activair hearing aid batteries operate on a new principle. The air around us activates the battery and starts it producing electric current.

But the air doesn't get into the battery until you peel it off the protective seal in the battery pack.

That's when it starts working. So it starts fresh, and lasts longer. Twice as long as the conventional batteries you're using now. Buy Activair next time you need batteries.

Shades Of Houdini

The 26-year-old Victorian jumped from a height of 7.6 metres before a crowd of about 2,000.

He surfaced without his straightjacket two minutes, 16 seconds after hitting the water.

Shilo, who says he's the first person to ever perform such a feat here, said today he'll probably be doing more daring escapes in the near future but he's not sure just what.

Shilo had hoped his next stunt would be a straightjacket escape while suspended from a pole atop the Hudsons Bay building, but the store vetoed the idea.

An announcement may be made this Friday, he said, before he performs in a Dimension IV Magic Productions show at Victoria High School. The show begins at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday nights.

ARBITRATION LAST RESORT

Victoria firefighters told their union negotiating committee Sunday that arbitration should be a last résort in settling their current contract dispute with the city.

Union president Richard Brideson said the membership made it clear at a special meeting they would like all other avenues exhausted.

"So we will not go directly to binding arbitration."

Brideson said the $30,000 bill the union had to pay the last time it went to arbitration has not been forgotten.

It cost union members $300 each.

"We're going to search out the labor code to try and find some alternative to this expensive procedure," he said.

The firefighters are seeking a six per cent increase in wages over one year. The city countered with an offer of four per cent.

History Marked

The town of Sidney's link with maritime history will be marked in a presentation at the opening of a national hydrographic conference at Patricia Bay Tuesday.

A plaque depicting Sidney's crest will be presented by Mayor Dick Leigh to regional hydrographer Mike Bolton before some 200 delegates attending the 17th annual Canadian Hydrographic Conference at the Institute of Ocean Sciences.

Sidney was named for Frederick William Sidney, who retired from the Royal Navy as a hydrographic surveyor in 1869.

Airline Fuel Picketing Continues

An application for an order to stop Local 213 of the Teamsters from picketing a Victoria fuel depot was denied Sunday in B.C.Supreme Court.

The picketing aimed at stopping fuel deliveries to AirWest Airlines continued today and a union spokesman warned that other sites might soon be taken in by the expanded picketing operations.

The spokesman refused to say where pickets might appear next but added: "Anybody who helps (AirWest president) Norm Gold fly might be hit."

Asked how soon the union expected its picketing of the airline's fuel supply to show results, the Teamster representative said: "If you believe Mr. Gold, they've got a month's supply on hand, but we doubt that. We'll just have to wait and see."

The application for an injunction against the Teamsters by Chevron Canada Ltd. was heard Saturday before Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson.

The decision was given orally to lawyers on Sunday.

Lawyer Morley Shortt, who represented the Teamsters, said the injunction application was turned down because the court felt the matter should be heard by the B.C. Labor Relations Board.

Some 70 Teamsters have been on strike against AirWest for five months, and have recently stepped up picketing.

The LRB has jurisdiction over provincial labor matters but not directly over the Teamsters-AirWest dispute, which is covered by federal legislation.

Among the issues raised at the Saturday hearing was whether the secondary picketing against Chevron is a federal or provincial matter.

'Known Troublemaker' Gets Suspended Term

A 23-year-old Victoria man, labelled a known troublemaker in the community by county court Judge E. J. C. Stewart, was given a suspended sentence today and placed on probation for three months.

James Brian McWilliams was found guilty last week of assault causing bodily harm to Albert Russell Turner. Court was told McWilliams punched Turner once at an after-hours club downtown for no apparent reason.

McWilliams, who plans to start in work in Edmonton May 3, was ordered by Judge Stewart to remain at home between midnight and 6 a.m. while on probation.

"This is unusual treatment for such a case for a record like the kind of one you have," said Stewart.

McWilliams has seven criminal convictions, the last one four years ago for assault causing bodily harm.

Judge Stewart said that usually for this kind of offence and considering the record, McWilliams should go to jail.

But "having regard to all the circumstances," including the fact that it happened in the early morning of Feb. 19, 1977, the presence of alcohol and the absence of a weapon, "I do not think it is a case for a custodial sentence, and a fine would not be appropriate."

A LOST WEEKEND

It was a losing weekend in more ways than one for Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Pacific Rim: Surf and Spouting Reef

EARLY IN APRIL, a small unexpected cheque turned up in our mail. It was a windfall of the sort that we regard as goblin gold: money dropped on us out of the blue, and not meant to be hoarded or even spent wisely. What we'd soonest do with it, we decided in consultation behind our rain-streaked windows, was use it to renew our acquaintance with the Pacific where it crashes in on Long Beach.

So we dumped a couple of hastily-packed bags in our car, added the battered old icebox that travels with us on our expeditions, and set off for Canada's far-western doorstep.

Last time we ventured over that way, Long Beach had yet to be discovered by the multitude, and Pacific Rim Park was still years in the future. The West Coast Road was an unpaved horror that wound its cliff-hanging way by a route littered with the detritus shed by the abused cars that braved it — tailpipes, shards of exploded tires, and occasionally a muffler.

The rain that had beat on our metal roof without letup from Campbell River to Qualicum, and cross-Island to Port Alberni, quickened its tempo.

Through a sluicing downpour, we studied a sign prominently displayed where Highway No. 4 begins its dive into the mountains from which it emerges with the West Coast achieved.

"No gasoline available for the next 85 miles," the sign warned.

It was still raining with undiminished vigor when we rolled in second gear down the last corkscrew hill above Kennedy Lake (annual rainfall, a brimming 400 inches) and straightened away for the town of Ucluelet.

That outport, which I remembered as nothing much more than fish-docks and a beer parlor, has expanded into a tidy enough town. We stayed long enough to visit with a specialty-shop operator whose stock consists mostly of shells he gathers on the wilder Pacific beaches.

He was one of those rare and fortunate mortals — a man in love with his work. He showed us how to bring out the pink blush in little native abalone shells by careful rubbing, and wished us an end to the rain which had been falling for the last five days.

A few miles out of Ucluelet, we slipped into Pacific Rim, which is billed as Canada's first national marine park. The transition is unspectacular. There's no arch, no border post or ranger station, merely a roadside sign with brown letters on tan to let the traveller know he has arrived within the preserve.

More striking by far is nature's own announcement that you have come finally to the open Pacific.

We poked our way through an area where park crews are getting in some off-season licks of highway reconstruction. The road dipped toward the shoreline — and there, suddenly exposed to view, was the ocean, with its black, jagged offshore reefs and spouting surf that rolled from a cloud-obscured horizon.

This was what we had come to see. We feasted our eyes on the spectacle. Nearby, a student group in wet-weather gear clustered around their leader, who expounded on marine life in the no-man's-land between the tides. The rain pounded down.

Next morning we woke to sunshine and a cloudless sky. We roved our way back along the course, putting in at Wickaninnish Bay where the once-popular Wickaninnish Inn, taken over presumably for park headquarters, sits deserted and forlorn.

At the edge of one of the nearby parking lots, we watched a lone motor camper cook his hibachi breakfast with a saucy Stellar's jay in attendance. Then on down to Green Point, a nicely laid-out campsite with 92 spaces — which is nothing like enough to cope with the summer hordes soon to descend upon Pacific Rim.

Finally, and still in that glorious sunshine, to the crest of Radar Hill, so-named from the wartime installations that once crowned it.

It was time to be heading back over the mountains to the tamer Vancouver Island east coast. But we lingered to store away non-negotiable treasure; the fantastc view of white surf and dark reef, and beyond them the limitless blue Pacific.

Our trip cost us $91.20, of which $54 was for two nights' cottage accommodation. Goblin gold, well spent!

SONICS ADVANCE; SIXERS BURY KNICKS

By Associated Press

Gus Williams started a second-quarter rally and rookie Jack Sikma carried the scoring load in the second half to lead the Seattle SuperSonics to a 111-102 victory over Los Angeles Lakers Sunday in the deciding game of their best-of-three first-round National Basketball Assocaition playoff series.

The Sonics, who lost to the Lakers at Los Angeles Friday night to set up Sunday's third game, will meet the defending world champion Portland Trail Blazers in a best-of-seven series starting Tuesday in Portland.

Sikma finished with 24 points, including 12 in the third period as the Sonics took a 91-78 lead into the final 12 minutes.

Williams scored 16 points in the first half, including 11 in a second-period rally that boosted the Sonics into a 59-50 half-time lead.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who turned 31 Sunday, played the entire game for Los Angeles and led all scorers with 31 points.

New York Knicks coach Willis Reed had called Philadelphia '76ers the best team in the league before the start of their National Basketball Association playoff quarter-finals, and Sunday's series opener did nothing to change his mind.

The Sixers took command early in the second quarter at 41-20 and were never in trouble, routing the Knicks 130-90 with eight Philadelphia players scoring in double figures.

In another quarter-final opener Sunday, San Antonio Spurs, who also were coming off a week's rest as the Central Division titlist, defeated Washington Bullets 114-103 behind NBA scoring champion George Gervin, who netted 25 of his game-high 35 points in the second half.

Scotty Wants Habs To Remember Back

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens are more than a little bit worried about their best-of-seven National Hockey League quarter-final series against Detroit Red Wings which gets under way tonight.

"Detroit only has to think back to our last game," said Montreal coach Scotty Bowman. "They beat us 4-0 and that has to mean something to them when they play us.

"We've got to remember that we've worked hard all year to finish first to get all the home game advantages, and we have to remember how we did it.

"The Red Wings have been working pretty hard to get where they are. I would have preferred to have played a team that had a layoff like us."

For three consecutive years, the Canadiens were matched against the winners of the weak Smythe Division and had little trouble knocking off their opponents. Now they are up against a team which has to have some momentum after defeating Atlanta Flames in two straight games in the preliminary round.

In the other quarter-final openers, Toronto Maple Leafs visit New York Islanders, Boston Bruins play host to Chicago Black Hawks and Philadelphia Flyers entertain Buffalo Sabres, who are fresh from defeating New York Rangers 4-1 Saturday night in the deciding game of their best-of-three preliminary round. (Playoff schedule is on page 21).

The Canadiens-Red Wings game will be televised on the CBC national network.

AFFIRMED AFFIRMS DERBY RATING

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Affirmed, the odds-on favorite, easily won the $284,750 Hollywood Derby on Sunday and reaffirmed his position as the leading three-year-old runner racing in California.

In virtually a wire-to-wire triumph, with Steve Cauthen in the saddle, Affirmed recorded his fourth consecutive win of 1978 and soon will head for Louisville and the Kentucky Derby, where he is the early favorite.

Cougars Bow to Bruins But Display Character

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The season ended Sunday evening for the Victoria Cougars, but not before the Western Canada Hockey League team once again showed some character in its makeup.

They went out trying.

Victoria coach Jack Shupe appreciated that bit of consolation after New Westminster Bruins held on to chalk up a 6-5 victory and eliminate the Cougars before 3,726 disappointed fans at Memorial Arena.

Advancing to the next playoff plateau, the disciplined Bruins captured the best-of-seven Western Division final in five games after the Cougars opened the series with a 4-3 victory. The Bruins followed up with 7-4 and 8-4 victories, then shoved Victoria to the brink of elimination Saturday night by defeating the Cougars 8-3 before 10,888 fans in Vancouver's PNE Coliseum.

The knockout punch followed Sunday.

And it was a third-period letdown that was the crushing factor for Victoria. In the third series game here last Friday, the Cougars headed into the final period with a 4-3 lead only to be stung by five unanswered New Westminster goals. Saturday night, trailing 4-0, the Cougars exploded for three goals late in the second period and were behind only by one, 4-3, starting the final 20 minutes when a long shot eluded goaltender Steve Amiss and took the wind out of Victoria's sails.

Tied 4-4 starting the third Sunday, the Bruins struck for a power-play goal by Brian Young at the 12-second mark. Three minutes, 14 seconds later Terry Kirkham scored what proved to be the game-winner.

Checking tenaciously, as they have throughout the series, the Bruins appeared headed for a comfortable ride to the WCHL finals.

That's when the Cougars showed their character. Denis Fenske reduced the deficit to 6-5 with a goal at the 15:57 mark and Victoria stormed to the attack for the remaining four minutes.

Shupe yanked goaltender Kevin Eastman in favor of an extra attacker for the final 23 seconds but the Cougars were unable to come up with the goal that might have forced sudden-death overtime.

The strong finish was typical of the Cougars. On several occasions during the regular season and playoffs, the Cougars appeared to be down for the full count but came bouncing back to reach the divisional final.

"Sure, I'm disappointed that we went out in five games," said Shupe. "We didn't play as well as we could have, and there's no doubt that the Bruins played much better than I expected they would.

"I'm proud of the way they finished."

Having played 85 games, exclusive of exhibitions, was fatigue a factor that might have contributed to Victoria's defeat?

"I don't think so," replied Shupe. "We played the same number of games as New Westminster. There's no doubt we were hurt by those quick goals in the third period Saturday night and again tonight.

"All in all, I think we had a pretty good season," added Shupe, who will have 11 players returning to form the nucleus of next year's club. Returning will be Eastman, defencemen Scott Lang, Mark Robinson and Todd Morton, forwards Geordie Robertson, Gary Lupul, Bob Jansch, Sid Giroux, Mike Shields, Mickey Willgress and George Firtz.

Playing their final games Sunday were goalie Steve Amiss, defencemen Glen Cochrane, Kim Spencer and Leroy Heck, and forwards Curt Fraser, Dennis Fenske and the overaged Bill Jobson. One of the first six named could be back as next year's overage player.

The Cougars, who scored their first four goals on power plays, were off and running on a goal by Curt Fraser, the first of his two. But the Bruins struck back with John Ogrodnick's two goals in 44 seconds. Both were sharp-angle shots that caught Eastman unawares.

Eastman settled down to play a strong game thereafter and finished up by making 44 stops compared to the 31 made by rival Richard Martens.

Regina Pats also were brushed aside in five games as Flin Flon Bombers joined New Westminster in advancing to the league's final showdown. Bomber, Bruins and Billings Bighorns, who had sidelined Medicine Hat Tigers in four straight, now play a round-robin series that will eliminate one team.

The two surviors advance advance to the best-of-seven series that will determined the WCHL representative in the Memorial Cup final.

Flin Flon defeated Regina 5-3 Sunday in the deciding Eastern Division encounter. (Summaries on page 18).

THE WINNER looks happier than the donor in the LPGA Birmingham Classic Sunday as Hollis Stacy celebrates victory with a giant-size cheque for $9,000. She had a nine-under par 207. Story below. (AP wirephoto).

Stacy Takes Title By Three Strokes

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Hollis Stacy of Savannah, Ga., fired a four-under-par 68 Sunday to win the $60,000 Birmingham event of the Ladies Professional Golf Association by three strokes.

Nancy Lopez, the leader entering Sunday's final round, soared to a 75 Sunday and finished tied for fifth at 213.

Stacy's 54-hole total of nine-under-par 207 was good for $9,000 and a three-stroke conquest of Jane Blalock of Highland Beach, Fla., and Pat Meyers of Ormond Beach, Fla.

Lopez of Roswell, N.M., led after both the first and second rounds, but went three-over par over the 5,987-yard Green Valley Country Club course Sunday.

Sandra Post, former Oakville, Ont., resident now living in Florida, won $151 with a final-round 75 for 224. Louise Bruce, a native of Toronto, had a 75 for 226, while Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C., finished with an 80 for 229.

Forsch's No-Hitter Saved By Fumble

By Associated Press

Just about everybody in the ballpark thought it was a hit. Not Neal Russo, however. And certainly not Bob Forsch.

The play in question occurred in the eighth inning of Sunday's game between St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies, and it meant the difference between baseball immortality and just another fine performance by Forsch.

Having held the Phillies hitless over the first seven innings, the Cardinals right-hander gave up a ground ball into left field by Philadelphia centre fielder Garry Maddox. There were groans from the crowd of 11,495 at Busch Stadium, most of them assuming the no-hitter was at an end.

However, the groans turned to cheers when Russo, the official scorer from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, ruled the play an error on third baseman Ken Reitz. And the cheers became a roar later when Forsch finished with a 5-0 no-hitter.

"It was a kind of questionable call, but to be called a hit I guess it's got to really be a legitimate hit," said Forsch. "I'm sure if you asked our third baseman about it, he'd be honest. I'm sure that he felt he should have had the ball."

"I went down for the ball and kind of double-pumped, trying to pick up the bounce," said Reitz, a Gold Glove winner. "It just went off the webbing of my glove. I should have had it. Sure, the Phillies thought it was a hit, but I was in a position to field the ball. I should have had it. It should have been an easy play."

Russo, meanwhile, remained unshakable in his decision. Asked if he had second thoughts about his judgment of the play, he replied:

"No, not really. It's a tough call, you have to admit that. Of course, the Phillies, to a man, argued. But that's human nature. It's to be expected. It's part of the game."

Forsch obviously did not let the Reitz error bother him. He finished strong, retiring the next three batters in the eighth with the help of a double play and then getting the side out on three grounders in the ninth.

The 28-year-old Forsch gave up two walks and struck out three in his fine performance. Up until Reitz's error in the eighth, there was nothing resembling a hit against the rangy right-hander. The no-hitter was the first in the National League since Sept. 29, 1976, when San Francisco's John Montefusco pitched one against Atlanta Braves.

Whitecaps Top Rochester

Times News Services

Vancouver Whitecaps scored three unanswered goals in the first half Sunday and went on to defeat Rochester Lancers 4-1 in a North American Soccer League game.

Kevin Hector, with this third goal in three games, Buzz Parsons and John Craven tallied for the Whitecaps in the first half.

Mike Stojanovic scored on a penalty kick early in the second half to bring the Lancers to within two goals, but Derek Possee put the game out of reach with a late goal.

The win kept the Cosmos in second place in the National Conference Eastern Division behind Washington Diplomats who beat Fort Lauderdale Strikers 4-1.

In other NASL games Oakland Stompers beat Chicago Sting 2-1, Colorado Caribous defeated San Jose Earthquake 3-2, Los Angeles Aztecs beat California Surf 4-1 and Tampa Bay Rowdies defeated Detroit Express 2-1.

On Saturday, Seattle Sockers beat Toronto Metros-Croatia 1-0 after a tiebreaking shootout, New England Tea Men beat Philadelphia Fury 1-0, Dallas Tornado defeated Minnesota Kicks 4-3 and San Diego Sockers beat Portland Timber 3-2.

Team Canada Puts Emphasis on Young Legs

BRAD MAXWELL
. . . rookie makes it

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada officials decided that the quickest way to a world hockey championship is achieved through the strong skating legs of young players.

That thinking was apparent Sunday afternoon with the announcement of Team Canada's 1978 lineup.

Of the 21 players selected for the world championship, which begins in Prague April 26, just two are over 30. They are centre Garry Unger, 30, of St. Louis Blues, and right winger Jean Pronovost, 32, of Pittssburgh Penguins.

Bypassed because of the emphasis on youth are veterans of international play such as Phil Esposito, Carol Vadnais and Peter Mahovlich.

On the bigger ice surfaces in Europe, the thinking is that speed is a greater asset than savy.

"We've got a good young skating club," coach Harry Howell said. "We emphasized youth because of the larger rinks in Europe.

"It's a different game over in Europe with the bigger ice surface. Over there it's skate, skate, skate. Our young legs should be able to keep pace with the Europeans.

"It's going to be tough over there, but our young legs will definitely be a plus," he said. "If you can skate with the teams over in Europe, you have an excellent chance of beating them. And this year we have the legs."

The team is especially green on defence with two of the six players selected just coming off rookie seasons in the National Hockey League—Brad Maxwell of Minnesota North Stars and Robert Picard of Washington Capitals.

New York Rangers' Dave Maloney and Rick Hampton of Cleveland Barons are the veterans on the blueline, each with four seasons in the NHL.

Although Hampton was chosen as an all-star defenceman in last year's world tournament in Vienna, he played the majority of the 1977-78 season with Cleveland as a forward.

Conceding that the team is faster, there's no guarantee it's any smarter.

In Vienna one of the prime contributors to the fourth-place finish was a lack of discipline on the ice. In many instances the players engaged in retaliatory tactics that ended in costly penalties.

And Howell knows a repeat performance would prove just as costly.

"We want to play it tough because that's the style of Canadian players," Howell said. "But we want our players to control themselves. Retaliation will only cost us penalties and that's what we have to avoid."

"The big thing is not to let the bad refereeing or whatever it is get to you," said Garry Unger. "We all know we have to prepare ourselves for bad calls. They are going to happen so we can't let ourselves get upset about them."

Five players on the team play for Atlanta Flames, the most of any NHL club. They are defencemen David Shand and Pat Ribble, centre Tom Lysiak, left winger Bob MacMillan and goaltender Dan Bouchard.

The team plays two exhibition games in Sweden and two in Czechoslovakia before the tournament opens.

Defence—Dave Maloney, New York Rangers; Brad Maxwell, Minnesota North Stars; Robert Picard, Washington Capital; Rick Hampton, Cleveland Barons; David Shand, Atlanta; Pat Ribble, Atlanta.

Centre—Dennis Maruk, Cleveland; Tim Young, Minnesota; Garry Unger, St. Louis Blues; Tom Lysiak, Atlanta; Pat Hickey, Rangers.

Right Wing—Marcel Dionne, Los Angeles Kings; Wilf Paiment, Colorado Rockies; Jean Pronovost, Pittsburgh; Glen Sharpley, Minnesota; Mike Murphy, Los Angeles.

Assistant coach—Marshall Johnston, Denver University.

Ferguson Morgan Top Qualifiers

Cec Ferguson and John Morgan fired par 70s at Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club to lead the qualifying round of the annual CFAX-Vancouver Island Open Golf Tournament.

Ferguson, recently returned from playing the Australian and Asian tours, three-putted the 18th hole to drop into a tie with Morgan but the former Open champion was awarded medallist honors for scoring better on the back nine holes. Ferguson was out in one-under-par 34 and came home with a one-over-par 36 while Morgan was scored 33 on the front nine and finished with 37 on the back nine.

Only seven pros started in the field of 120 and Ferguson and Morgan were the only ones to make into the field of 32 that qualified for the championship match-play.

Experience appears to have been a key to success on the tough Colwood layout that was extra difficult because of strong unpredictable winds. Youngsters who led the way last year failed to qualify this time around while the five low amateurs are veterans of tournament play.

Defending champion Jim Rutledge, 17 when he won last year's open, struggled to an 11-over-par 81 and missed both the championship and handicap rounds while Dave Anderson, a surprise finalist last year, also fired 81 and had to settle for a spot in the handicap playoffs with a net 75.

Mike Gray of Uplands, Grant Milliken of Gorge Vale, Rick Kent of Glen Meadows and Brian Gandy and Dave Mick of Colwood shot 73s to share the amateur lead. Rob Ferguson of Gorge and Jon Mahovlic, a Colwood junior and younger brother of Victoria assistant pro Doug Mahovlic, were next with 74s.

Young Mahovlic, a six handicapper, shared low-net honors with Urban Allen of Gorge Vale

The golfers were unanimous in comments that Colwood had seldom played tougher but they also agreed that it was in excellent shape. "I've never seen it in better condition," said one struggling veteran between grumbles over pin placements and the inclement weather.

Morgan agreed with that assessment and another that the course was comparable with any in the country.

But the course and the wind and cold didn't give Morgan much trouble. He was two-under-par after 10 holes but took bogeys on the 260-yard par-three 11th hole and the 383-par-four 13th hole before parring home.

Ferguson hit his drive out-of-bounds on 10 but recovered for a bogey five and even par. He birdied the 174-yard 15th hole to go one-under then lost sole possession of first place with the three-putts on 18.

Penalties Hurt Birmingham

By The Canadian Press

Birmingham Bulls appear determined never to reform.

The most penalized team in the World Hockey Association regular season with a record 2,177 minutes despite numerous player suspensions and fines, the Bulls are continuing their rampage through the playoffs.

Now, the penalties are proving even more costly with nine power play goals and one penalty-shot goal scored against them in two games, but still they promise more mayhem.

"I don't know if the penalties really did cost us the hockey game," an unrepentant Bulls coach Glen Sonmor said after his team lost 8-3 to Winnipeg Jets Sunday night.

"We're trying to eliminate the silly type of penalty but we're not going to stop going after them physically. In fact, we'll intensify it at home."

The Jets scored four power play goals in their win Sunday night and took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven quarter-final series which continues in Birmingham on Wednesday. The Jets had scored five power play goals and a penalty goal in Friday's 9-3 opening victory.

Two other WHA playoff matches Sunday were not without some violence. A total of 30 penalties were whistled at Springfield, Mass., where New England Whalers beat Edmonton Oilers 4-1 for a 2-0 lead in that series. And 25 penalties were called at Houston where the Aeros beat Quebec Nordiques 4-3 after overtime of their series opener.

The biggest brawl at Winnipeg came near the end of the first period when Gilles Bilodeau of the Bulls squared off with Kim Clackson of Winnipeg and all players became involved.

"It was ridiculous the way the linesman handled the situation," said Sonmor. "He obviously panicked, went rushing in and pinned the arm of our guy. That's when Clackson gave him a sucker punch. You think we're going to take that? We're sure as hell not."

The Bulls took a total of 157 minutes in penalties while the Jets took only 70 and continued to enjoy their power play opportunities.

Player Repeats Masters; Closes Strongly to Win

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Just as he did in the Masters, Gary Player came from seven shots off the pace, this time with a five-under-par 67 that vaulted him past struggling Severiano Ballesteros and brought him the title Sunday in golf's Tournament of Champions.

And, again as it happened last week in the agonizing tension of the Masters, the South African put his score on the board early in the day. Just as it was at Augusta, Ga., he then had more than a half-hour to wait and watch—no longer able to effect the outcome—as the game's best players took their shot at his 281 total, seven under par on the wet and soggy, 6,889-yard La Costa Country Club course.

No one really came close this time and Player became the first man in more than a year to win consecutive titles on the American tour. He scored by two strokes and collected $45,000 from the purse of $225,000 distributed in the event that brings together only the winners of PGA tour titles from the last 12 months.

That gave him a total of $90,000 in the last 2 weeks and $99,801 for his brief American tour this year.

Ballesteros, the spectacular young Spaniard who led or shared the lead through the first three rounds and had a four-shot margin coming into the final 18 holes, shot himself out of it in a hurry.

He double-bogeyed the first hole in the blading his third shot into a bunker. He got two more shots in the water, three-putted the sixth hole, made double bogey 5 after leaving it in a bunker on the 14th and finally finished with a fat 79 that left him well back at 286.

It was his last appearance in this country for an undetermined period. He's heading back to his native land for the Spanish Open next week and will play in Europe most of the rest of the year.

The winner of the Greensboro Open a couple of weeks ago, he had been offered a PGA tour card which would enable him to play in the United States on a regular basis. He indicated he would not accept it and will play in this country next only if he's given an exemption into the U.S. Open in June.

Tied for second behind the black-clad Player were Lee Trevino and Andy North at 283. North shot a 69 on the course still wet and heavy from overnight rains, and Trevino had 71.

Mac McLendon, Bill Kratzert and Leonard Thompson were next at 284. Kratzert matched par 72, Thompson shot 71 and McLendon had 73.

Farrell Gets Three As Royals in Romp

Cosmopolitan Royals were not about to become another upset statistic.

Royals, who finished eighth in the first division, blanked Castaways of the second division 6-0 in the Jackson Cup semi-final match Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Castaways, who finished sixth in their division, toppled two other first division opponents — Victoria West and Duncan Powel's Men's Wear — earlier in the Vancouver Island Soccer League's single-loss elimination tourney.

Steve Farrell set the pace for Royals, who led 4-0 at half time, with three goals at 28, 80 and 83 minutes.

Rudi Kuebler, a former first division scoring champion, scored twice (30 and 58 minutes) while Pierre Castellini scored the other marker at 54 minutes.

Royals will face Victoria Athletics, who dropped Gorge Molsons 4-2 in the other semi, in the Jackson Cup final at 2:15 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic.

Both teams also collect berths in the Province Cup competition the following weekend.

In Province Cup play, the Jackson Cup winner will face the winner of the Fraser Valley League here while the other VISL representative will travel to the Lower Mainland to meet the winner of a challenge match between the fourth-place finisher in the Vancouver League and the runner-up in the Fraser Valley League.

The winner of the eight-team, single-loss elimination playoff will advance to the Canadian playoffs.

In first-division action the same day, Victoria West battled to a 3-3 deadlock with host Powell River Villas and eliminated the Mainland squad from the divisional playoffs.

Robbie Williams scored twice and Steve Forslund suppled the other tally for Vic West while Brian Gomez scored all three goals for Powell River.

First division playoffs get underway Wednesday night with Athletics meeting Duncan Powel's Men's Wear at 7:30 p.m. at Royal Athletic in one semi-final. Victoria West and University of Victoria Vikings meet in the other semi on Sunday.

The final is scheduled for April 26.

Rebels Take Fifth Title

Defending-champion Rebels I captured their fifth Playoff Cup in six years Sunday by downing Market Square 3-1 in the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association playoff final at Centennial Stadium.

Don McFarlane led Rebels, who also won the league title, with two goals while Rick Eison added a single.

Phil Watt averted a shutout for Market Square.

The season winds up Saturday and Sunday with the annual Seven-a-Side tournament at Centennial Stadium.

Olsen Wins Javelin

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (CP) — Brigitte Bittner of Elliot Lake, Ont., won the women's high jump with a leap of 1.83 metres (six feet) in the Dogwood Relays track and field meet Saturday.

Bittner, representing the host University of Tennessee, beat team-mate Joanne MacLeod whose best jump was 1.77 metres.

Tennessee athlete Phil Olsen of Nanaimo had a winning throw of 78.28 metres (256 feet, 10 inches) in the javelin, while Bruno Pauletto of Quebec City placed second in the shot put with a heave of 18.76 metres (61-6¾). Doug Price of Tampa Bay won the shot put with a mark of 19.24.

FIVE-YEAR CONTRACT

BALTIMORE (AP) — Following several months of negotiations, Ted Marchibroda has signed a five-year contract at $150,000-a-year to coach the Baltimore Colts.

Throughout the negotiations, Marchibroda said he and Robert Irsay, the owner of the National Football League club, had agreed on the length of the contract and the salary. Marchibroda's previous three-year contract paid him about $50,000 a year.

First United Captures Bantam Hoop Tourney

PIERRE FONDS, Que — First United Stars of Victoria ran into their toughest competition in three years but, retaining their poise, chalked up two victories Sunday to capture top honors in the sixth annual Riverdale Invitational bantam girls basketball tournament.

Jumping off to a 43-20 half-time lead, the Moe Turner-coached Stars defeated New York's Intercession Chapel 78-65 in the semi-finals and then edged host Brookwood Angels 64-59 in Sunday's championship finale.

Still undefeated in their own age group for the past three years, First United advanced to the semi-finals by completing round-robin preliminary play with a 3-0 record after a pair of easy victories Saturday. Stars defeated Ottawa 78-50 and then humbled Three Rivers, Que., 70-42.

Sparking Victoria's balanced attack was Diana Thornton. She scored 104 points in the four weekend games, including a high of 35 against Ottawa and 25 in the final against the Angels.

Both New York and the host Quebec team came back strongly after Stars had jumped into commanding leads. New York's rally was sparked by Kimberly Cameron, who scored 34 points.

First United will spend two days sightseeing in Quebec before returning to Victoria.

PEDROZA WINS TITLE

OWEN WALSTROM
. . . top B.C. gymnast

Walstrom Takes B.C. Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owen Walstrom of the Victoria Sports School was named the British Columbia senior men's gymnastics champion Saturday following the annual provincial championships at the University of B.C.

Walstrom was the only performer at the national senior level, scoring a total of 98.70 all-around points following floor exercise, still rings, high bar, parallel bars, side horse and vaulting events.

Phillip Delesalle, also of the Victoria Sports School and Canada's top male gymnast, has held the provincial title for the last three years. He was unable to compete Saturday because he was competing in an invitational meet at Tokyo.

Walstrom performed several new moves, giving the audience a sample of the high calibre of gymnastics expected at the international level.

The highest all-around score of the meet was earned by junior men's champion David Bibby of the University of Victoria with a total of 98.95 points.

Bibby won all but the side horse competition, which was taken by defending provincial champion Mike Vossen of the Victoria Sports School who had an all-around score of 92.70. Bibby was runner-up to Vossen at the 1977 meet.

Barry Christie of Surrey North Stars scored 72.45 for third-place.

Mark Byrne of Surrey North Stars, second all-around with a score of 89.25, won the parallel bars competition and scored 16.15 in the floor exercise compared with Boulanger's 16.60.

The senior and junior events were divided between national and level two divisions. The novice competition was not at a national level.

Robert Hunter of Surrey North Stars was all-around winner of the men's senior two competition with 80.85 points while Glen Harder of West Vancouver scored 75.00 as winner of the junior two competition.

The B.C. women's gymnastic championships for the novice, junior and senior women will be April 21 and 22 at Balmoral High School in North Vancouver.

South Zone Team Champs

The South Zone, calling on competitors from Arbutus, Central, Lambrick, Lansdowne and Reynolds, compiled 89.45 points Saturday to capture team honors in the Lansdowne Invitational girls' gymnastics meet.

Sooke-Saanich, represented by Spencer, finished second with 74.05 points.

NFL TO CONTINUE BLACKOUT POLICY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League has informed Congress it will voluntarily continue its policy of lifting television blackouts on sold-out home games for the next two seasons.

In a letter to the chairman of the House of Representatives communications sub-committee, NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said the league will continue to telecast locally games that are sold out 72 hours in advance of kickoff.

Despite the letter, the sub-committee intends to go ahead with its plans to hold public hearings in Miami April 28 on legislation to impose a permanent ban on TV blackouts on sold-out home games.

NEW FORMULA
Uniflo
MOTOR OIL
1 QT 1.14l

We drove half a million test miles to prove new formula Uniflo can save gas. We tested against our best oil, Uniflo, and the test fleet showed dramatic results on new formula Uniflo. Mileage improved an average of 11.4 miles per tankful, and the oil lasted twice as long – 15,000 miles.

That's how good new Uniflo is.

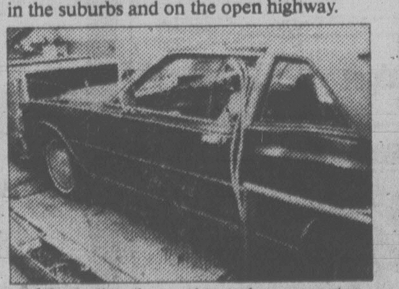
This was one of the most comprehensive road tests ever undertaken by Imperial Oil Research. We used big cars, small cars, old cars, new cars...and we tested our old Uniflo and our new formula Uniflo in each car. The drivers were not professionals. They were ordinary people driving ordinary cars a total of 480 miles a day; in the city, in the suburbs and on the open highway.



Including the road test, dynamometer tests and some track-tests, we drove a total of a million miles. And at the end of it we found that with new Uniflo in the crankcase, the test fleet averaged 11.4 more miles to a tank of gas!

How can oil save gas?

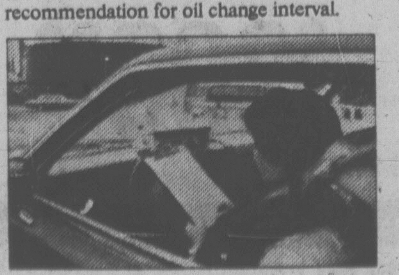
First of all, Uniflo is made from a very highly refined, natural base stock which has been fortified with special additives to control thickening, deposits, rust, corrosion and wear.

In addition, new Uniflo contains a friction-fighter that can help improve your gas mileage by reducing the friction between the moving parts of your engine. So less gasoline energy is used fighting internal friction and more of that energy is available to move your car.

In our test, we found that there was a conditioning period of about 2,000 miles while the friction-reducing action of new Uniflo built up. Once that was over, the full fuel economy benefits of new Uniflo were realized.

Is new Uniflo warranty approved?

Yes. New Uniflo is a super-premium quality multigrade oil that meets and exceeds the API classification SE called for by car manufacturers. It is the best oil Imperial has ever made for cars and you can use new Uniflo with complete confidence.
NOTE: If your car is still under warranty, you should continue to follow the manufacturer's recommendation for oil change interval.



What will new Uniflo do for you?

It should improve your gas mileage. How much, we can't say, since we don't know your car, how you drive, when you drive, or where you drive. What we do know is what we found in our road test: 17 out of 19 cars in our test fleet got better gas mileage when they switched over to new Uniflo. And the average improvement was 11.4 miles per tank of gas.

Does new Uniflo cost more?

Yes it does. But not a whole lot more. And considering that new Uniflo has demonstrated that it can save gas and last for 15,000 miles or a year, whichever comes first, it is an excellent value.

When you're ready for an oil change, drive into your local Esso dealer and change over to new formula Uniflo...oil so good it can save gas.

U.S. SWIMMERS DOMINATE MEET

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dynamic Tracy Caulkins and Scott Spann inspired another assault on the 25-metre record books Sunday, leading America's rejuvenated swim team to a humiliating 233-111 defeat of the Soviet Union, which didn't win a first place medal in 29 events.

Caulkins, 15, from Nashville, Tenn., again defeated Russia's best, Yulia Bogdanova, for the second day in a row—this time in the 100-meter breaststroke.

The American then charged to a victory in the 200-metre individual medley, giving Caulkins four victories in the two-day meet.

In each of the 19 Sunday events, the United States established American, U.S. Open and World Best records. World records can only be established in international standard 50-metre pools.

The Americans clearly intimidated their Soviet counterparts, who only a week ago shocked powerful East Germany in dual meet.

Russia had lost twice previously to the Americans but were expected towin some events.

Mowhawks Top Kings . . . Again

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Prince George Mohawks beat North Shore Hurry Kings 6-4 Sunday to win the Western Canada intermediate hockey title.

The Mohawks' second win over the North Vancouver club in as many weekends advanced Prince George to the best-of-five national final against defending-champion Campbellton, N.B. Tigers which opens here Friday.

The Mowhawks, who beat the Hurry Kings two games to one to win the B.C. title last weekend, led 2-1 after the first period and were tied 3-3 going into the third period.

The Mohawks won their division of the tournament by hanging on to beat the Thompson, Man., Hawks 7-6 Saturday night. North Shore qualified Friday by beating Warroad, Minn., Lakers, 6-4.

The second-division final will also be played Saturday at Macdonald.

James Bay also won the third division end-of-the-season tournament Sunday, compiling a 3-0 record in the round-robin affair.

Lukowich Tops Curling Classic

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Eddie Lukowich's rink from Medicine Hat, Alta. took top prize money of $17,500 in the CBC Classic bonspel here during the weekend, downing U.S. Champion Bobby Nichols from Superior, Wis., 5-4 in an extra end of a second game between the two.

Eight teams entered the double knockout tournament, which offers a total of $35,000 in prize money.

Nichols, who picked up $6,000 for winning series A in the bonspiel, lost his chance at top money by about a quarter-inch, the difference in a measurement in the 10th end of the last game.

Nichols had tried to draw for two but knocked one of his own rocks towards the edge of the circle, forcing a measurement which gave a Lukowich stone the narrow margin of about a quarter-inch.

Lukowich had beaten Nichols 11-7 in the second last game Saturday afternoon to force the evening playoff.

ARGOS RENEGED ON DEAL

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts broke a legally-binding contract when they decided Friday not to pursue former Miami Dolphins defensive lineman Don Reese, the former National Football League player's agent said.

Owner Bill Hodgson of the Canadian Football League club said Reese, whom the Argos apparently signed two weeks ago, would not join the club this season or in the foreseeable future.

Reese, with another former Dolphin, Randy Crowder, is serving a one-year jail term in Florida after being convicted on a drug trafficking charge last August.

Reese's lawyer, one-time Dolphin great, Nick Buoniconti, has been pushing for the player's release from prison by May so he could join the Argonauts training camp at the University of Guelph on May 31.

West Indies Recovers Well

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuter) — West Indies, who lost their first two wickets for only 16 runs, recovered to reach 283 for eight in their first innings at close of play on the first day of the fourth cricket test against Australia Saturday.

Captain Alvin Kallicharran, who scored 127 here in the first test, made an elegant 92 full sweet drives and Basil Williams followed his century in his first test two weeks ago with 87.

Williams and Larry Gomes who took 124 minutes over 30 runs, put on 95 runs for the third wicket to begin the rescue act continued by Kallicharran who was at the wicket for 163 minutes and hit 16 fours.

Despite a very vocal protest by demonstrators outside the ground during the morning urging a boycott of the match to protest the West Indies Cricket Board decision to ban World Series cricket stars, a good crowd of about 8,000 watched the day's play.

Alberta Green Makes Every Post A Winner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alberta Green was first out of the gate and went all the way on the front Saturday to win the $10,000-added Lansdowne Handicap at Exhibition Park.

The five-year-old bay horse opened up two lengths on the full field of 10 down the backstretch but was hard pressed to hold off the late charge of Smiley's Dream at the wire.

Smiley's Dream, a four-year-old colt who won Horse of The Year honors last year at the track, challenged early for him and was second at the half mile. He made up nearly two lengths in the stretch but Alberta Green held on to take the photo by a nose. Smiley's Dream is owned by the Jawl Brothers of Victoria. Pampas Host, part of a Harold Barroby trained entry with Alberta Green, was third, 5¾ lengths back of Smiley's Dream.

The entry paid $7.60, $4.70 and $6.10; Smiley's Dream paid $4.90 and $4.10.

Alberta Green earned $7,070 and Pampas Host $1,110 for a total of $8,180 for owners Canada West Ranches. It was the first start of the season for Alberta Green.

Japan Winner

CHIBA, Japan (Reuter) — Fuantasuto, ridden by jockey Masato Shibata, won this year's first Japanese event for colts by finishing first in the $327,272 Japanese 2,000 Guineas at the Nakayama Race Course on Sunday.

China Invited To Join IAAF

SEOUL (Reuter) — The International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) council has recommended China's admission to the IAAF, and the expulsion of Taiwan if China applied for membership, IAAF general secretary John Holt said Sunday.

Holt said the council unanimously passed a resolution Sunday asking him to invite China to join the IAAF.

Bowl Game Impresses In Fifth Straight Win

By The Canadian Press

"I can't believe this horse," said trainer Jack Gaver after Bowl Game won the $150,000 Pan American Handicap. "He just keeps getting better and better."

A Greentree Stables' product, Bowl Game—the even-money favorite—closed strongly on the inside to score a decisive victory in the 1½-mile turf race at Gulfstream in Hallandale, Fla. That's A Nice, ridden by Jeff Fell of Mississauga, Ont., finished well on the outside to be second, with Court Open third after leading most of the way. Oilfield was fourth.

Bowl Game was timed in 2:30 1-5 and paid $4, $3.20 and $2.60. That's A Nice returned $5.40 and $4.20. Court Open paid $6.40.

In other featured thoroughbred races:

—Huggle Duggle led all the way and hung on for a half-length victory over Council Rose in the $58,100 Gallorette Handicap at Pimlico in Baltimore.

And, Buck Mountain, owned by Sam Brener, won the $23,065 Woodstock Stakes at Greenwood in Toronto with Stafford Farms' Royal Sparkle a neck behind in second place.

'It's hard to comprehend a horse winning two major stakes in less than a month on different surfaces," Gaver said of Bowl Game. "He deserves a world of credit. I told (Jorge) Velasquez to get him off the pace and he did."

"The pace was slow and the course was deep," Velasquez said. "That's why I wasn't as far back as usual with this horse. I waited for room onthe hedge and I got it when I turned for home. When it did, my horse was full of run. He improves everytime he runs."

Bowl Game, who won the $150,000 Gulfstream Handicap three weeks ago, has five victories in a row since breaking his maiden at Hialeah on Feb. 15.

Cox's Ridge, a four-year-old colt by Best Turn, trailed in last place down the backstretch. He then moved to the outside under jockey Eddie Maple and easily caught up. Cox's Ridge circled the field, took the lead in the stretch and went on an impressive victory.

The victory was his 12th in the last 13 starts.

The Bridge Expert

Had an expert been sitting in the bench seat in today's deal, he surely would have fulfilled his game contract. But the deal happened to arise in an non-expert game, and South committed an error in his play.

North-South vulnerable.
North deals.

♡ A 7
◇ J 10 8 6
♣ A K 9 7 5

WEST	EAST
♠ A Q 9 4	♠ 10 8 5 3
♡ K Q J 10 2	♡ 9 8 6 4 3

♣ 8 2	♣ Q J 10

SOUTH
♠ K J 7
♡ 5
◇ A K Q 7 3 2
♣ 6 4 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ◇	1 ♡
2 ◇	Pass	5 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Upon winning West's opening heart lead with dummy's ace, South cashed his ace and king of trumps. He then played the ace and king of clubs, after which he led a third club, East's queen winning. East shifted to a spade and West made two spade tricks.

As declarer should have viewed the setup, the danger to his contract was that East might obtain the lead to play a spade through South's king. If he did, then South might well lose two spade tricks.

Of course declarer knew that it was essential to establish dummy's club suit, in order to be able to discard two of his spades. And while establishing the club suit, all efforts had to be directed toward keeping East out of the lead. This could have been accomplished if West's king of hearts had been permitted to capture the opening lead. West would then have continued with another heart, dummy's ace winning. On this trick, South would have discarded his losing club.

Trumps would then be drawn after which the ace and king of clubs would be cashed. A third club would be ruffed next, promoting dummy's two remaining clubs into winners. Entering dummy via a trump, South would discard his seven and jack of spades on dummy's two high clubs. From here in, the spade king would be his only loser.

By not taking the heart ace at trick one, declarer would actually be exchanging a trick for a trick. Instead of giving away a club trick later, he would be giving away a heart trick at trick one. In so doing, he would be eliminating the possibility of East obtaining the lead.

"So you came by bus after all," said Sally. "Was it crowded?"

Jack smiled. "Not too bad, and there was only one stop on the way," he replied. "It was funny about us passengers. We started with twice as many males as females. But at that stop seven men and one woman got off, and eleven women got on. Then we had twice as many females as males."

How many passengers was that?

First Win For Jaeckel

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Barry Jaeckel recorded his first Professional Golfers' Association tour victory by defeating Bruce Lietzke on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff Sunday in the 10th annual Tallahassee Open.

Jaeckel, 29, the 1972 French Open champion, parred the 378-yard, par-four No. 1 to edge out Lietzke, who had a double bogey on the hole after hitting a bunker and blasting out some 30 feet away from the pin, then three-putting.

Jaeckel, whose best finish this year was a fourth in Los Angeles, moved into a tie for the lead on the last hole of regulation play by shooting a birdie while Lietzke, the leader after the third round in the morning, suffered a bogey.

Jaeckel shot rounds of 70-67-71-65 for a 15-under-par 201 over the 7,124-yard, par-72 Killearn Golf and Country Club course to gain the playoff.

The victory was worth more than the $16,000 first prize to Jaeckel, who had won $18,603 going into the tournament, because he is now exempt from qualifying for one year and will play in the 1979 Masters and Tournament of Champions.

The 26-year-old Lietzke, who earned $202,156 for fifth place in 1977 after victories in the Tucson and Hawaiian Opens but only had $18,069 this year, was the leader going into the final round with a 13-under-par 209 after shooting a 69 in the morning, putting him one stroke ahead of Bobby Wadkins, who set the course on fire with seven birdies. Jaeckel was five strokes behind.

Lietzke then bogeyed two of the first four holes while Wadkins birdied No. 2 to take a one-stroke lead over Canadian rookie Jim Nelford of Burnaby, the leader of the first two days, who birdied the first hole.

The 26-year-old Wadkins, whose best finish in 13 previous events was a second in Tucson to give him $37,723 this year, built up a two-stroke lead over Nelford, four strokes over Lietzke and seven strokes over Jaeckel going into the ninth.

Wadkins boyeged the ninth to make the turn at 15 under par, one stroke in front of Nelford, five over Lietzke and six over Jaeckel.

Wadkins increased his lead to two strokes on No. 12 with Nelford holding his own but Lietzke scored birdies on No. 10 and No. 12 while Jaeckel shot two birdies to put him five strokes behind Wadkins and two in back of Lietzke and Nelford.

Lietzke moved into a tie for the lead at the relatively-easy 566-yard, par-five No. 13 with a birdie while Wadkins bogeyed and then took the lead with a birdie on the 210-yard par-three No. 14 while Wadkins was suffering another bogey. Meanwhile, Jaeckel edged closer with an eagle three on No. 13 and a birdie on No. 14, giving him a pickup of five strokes on five holes.

Things remained that way until the final regulation hole when Lietzke bogeyed and Jaeckel birdied while Nelford got his first bogey in 29 holes to knock him out of the playoff.

Waltrip Wins Duel With Petty

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip took the lead from Richard Petty with 69 laps to go, opened up a comforable one-lap margin and held off a late Petty burst to win the Stanley 400 stock car race at the North Wilkesboro Speedway Sunday.

Waltrip won the $13,075 purse under a caution flag, with D.K. Ulrich lossing an engine on the final lap which brought out the yellow flag.

With Waltrip and Petty running in each other's shadows for much of the race, the Petty Dodge fell behind on a late pit stop and Waltrip took his Chevrolet to his second win of the season in the 250-mile NASCAR race. Petty was second, Benny Parsons third, Lennie Pond fourth and Dave Marcis fifth, two laps behind the leader.

Thunderous Farewell to Gati

BY AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A near-capacity audience stood for minutes applauding at the conclusion of Victoria Symphony's Sunday concert.

But the ovation was more of a farewell and a salutation to departing maestro Laszlo Gati, than an accolade to the choral guest artists.

The performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, brought to a conclusion the orchestra's 37th, and Gati's 11th and final season as music director and conductor.

The all-Beethoven program, to be repeated tonight at the Royal includes the Symphony No. 1 in C Major. Guest for the occasion is the nearly 100-voice Salt Lake Symphonic Choir, which, incidentally, is not to be confused with the Salt Lake Mormon Tabernacle Choir.

As things turned out Sunday, while the colossal Ninth inevitably generates more excitement, the real musical satisfaction of the afternoon had to rest at the opposite end of the Beethoven scale, with the Symphony No. 1.

Throughout this performance Gati established virtuoso tempi and the orchestra responded well, exhibiting a buoyant vitality and alertness in entrances and releases, marred only by some degree of over-enthusiasm in the timpani.

The Ninth did not fare quite so well as far as the orchestra was concerned. There was some muddy work among the winds, some doubtful intonation and untidiness now and then, and a sense of remorseless drive rather than a swelling ecstasy in approaching the massive climax.

The shape of the whole thing is too rigid, too much of a forced march, to be successful in conveying the soaring spirit and passion of the incomparable "Ode to Joy" which set Beethoven's genius aflame.

The choir and its four soloists were unable to cope comfortably with this material. They not only had grave problems with German poet Schiller's text but with the general tonal range and color, and their performance was not made more explicable by being constantly smothered by the orchestra.

Some of the blame for this must be attributed to the insurmountable difficulty of the Royal Theatre stage with its necessary placing of the choir well to the back where some of their sound must always be absorbed in the flies.

As for the soloists — Loraine Wood, Leslie Wastlund, George Welch and David V. Behunin — they too were somewhat overwhelmed by the orchestra as well as by the work itself, which does not lie comfortably within the tessitura of any of their voices. The solo vocal lines in the Ninth demand a rich and full resonance which none of these singers possess to sufficient degree.

Maestro Gati could not have chosen a much more demanding work for his farewell performance — which he conducted incidentally, entirely without score. But somehow I wish that he had left us instead with one of the important colorful works of Kodaly, Dvorak or Smetana of which he is a particularly able interpreter.

HOLOCAUST PROTEST

TORONTO (CP) — The leader of a German-Canadian group protesting the showing of the movie Holocaust on television has called the film a vehicle for Zionist propaganda.

Ernst Zundel of the Concerned Parents of German Descent said the movie, based on the Nazi extermination of European Jews during the Second World War, is the worst hate propaganda he has ever seen.

"This is just another example of the hate we Germans are subjected to in our schools and on TV," said Zundel. "You won the war and you're entitled to brag for a while, but 30 years is long enough."

The movie, made for the United States television network NBC, was also being carried on a Hamilton station.

Zundel, along with 30 members of his group, demonstrated Sunday outside the offices of The Sun which published excerpts of the book Holocaust and a local bookstore where the book was being sold.

The 9½-hour movie, being telecast over four nights, is based on a novel by Gerald Green.

Re-Licensing Explained

VANCOUVER (CP) — Local fishermen feel a trust has been broken by the federal government in the fisheries ministry's $6 million fish-boat buy-back scheme, a ministry official said today.

Fishermen are concerned over re-issuing of licences for boats which were taken out of the fisheries eight years ago by the government, said C. H. B. Newton, director of economics and special industry services, Pacific Region of federal fisheries.

Newton said that most of the cases of licences being re-issued on boats involved in the buy-back scheme were at discretion of the minister and for compassionate reasons, usually to ensure the livelihood of a fisherman.

Newton's comments followed charges that the ministry is knowingly licensing fishboats that the government removed permanently from the fleet.

Tom Siddon, federal Progressive Conservative candidate for Richmond-South Delta, has released a letter he sent to Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc in which he questions the re-licensing and the continuation of higher licence fees imposed to pay for the buy-back program when the program costs have been paid off.

"A number of West Coast fishing vessels previously removed by your department from the commercial fishery under the government-sponsored buy-back program have now re-appeared in the commercial fishing fleet," said Siddon.

The program was started about eight years ago when then-fisheries minister Jack Davis said the government intended to reduce the size of the B.C. fishing fleet because of a limited supply of fish.

Three hundred and forty-six boats were purchased at a cost of $6.1 million and sold at public auction for $2.5 million.

Siddon quoted a letter from Newton confirming that "the licensing of such boats was in direct contravention of the intent of the program" but that exceptions in special cases are at the absolute discretion of the minister.

"Has your department requested the present owner of the vessel Norvis Puffin to inform all potential purchasers of the vessel that, when known as Cachalot, the vessel was removed from the West Coast fishery through the buy-back program?" Siddon asked in the latter.

"The vessel . . . was purchased by the government on May 26, 1972 for $43,272. One month later (it) was sold at public auction to Norvis International Ltd. for $13,000. I am advised that the Norvis Puffin is being offered for sale by Norvis International, having recently been granted a C licence at your discretion."

"The asking price is $75,000. Do you think the re-licensing of this vessel was warranted?" Siddon asked.

Kim Gaynor, president of Norvis, said the facts in Siddon's letter are correct but Siddon has omitted mentioning capital improvements made to the vessel. Gaynor reserved comment on the matter of licensing for buy-back boats.

George Hewison, general secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said the break offered the Norvis Puffin operator is in stark contrast to genuine hardship cases involving longtime fishermen who are losing their livelihood and who get no compassionate reprieve from LeBlanc.

Hewison said that despite the hard line with independent fishermen, the tonnage of the B.C. fishing fleet seems to be rising.

Production Up in China

TOKYO (AP) — China's industrial production hit an all-time high in the first quarter of 1978, and increased development is planned, the official Hsinhua news agency reported.

As usual with such Communist reports, no production figures were given. But it said production of steel, oil, natural gas and coal increased sharply.

Murder Charged

Leonard Allan Patterson, 19, of Nanaimo, was charged with second-degree murder Saturday following a three-month police investigation into the death of Frederick Alexander Puglas, 26, also of Nanaimo.

Puglas was found dead Dec. 30, 1977 at the base of a stairway behind a store in the downtown area of Nanaimo.

Police said no weapon was involved, but would not say if Puglas had been beaten or pushed down the stairs.

RCMP said the case broke Wednesday, but declined further comment.

GENETIC ENGINEERING: CONSUMER BONANZA?

and JEREMY RIFKIN
Pacific News Service
(Eighth of nine parts)

For the people of Gary, Ind., Asheville, N.C., or Nitro, W. Va., the bizarre promises of the Biological Revolution may offer a real piece of concrete relief as early as next year.

What unites these three minor cities? Stench. The unabated reek of industrial odor created by steel, chemical and paper factories. With polluting smells becoming increasingly intolerable, some geneticists say relief may be as close as a one-time gene injection to alter sensory perception.

The Monsanto Chemical Co. has already moved one primitive step in that direction with the introduction of a revolutionary new type of deodorant it plans to market next year. The product is called Veilex, and instead of covering up bad odors with perfumed scents, it anesthetizes the nerves in the nose that sense bad smells, while leaving the good smell nerves untouched.

Experimentation in altering the human response to smell is a relatively new field, but already the first taste and smell clinic has been set up at Georgetown University Hospital in Washington, D.C., to conduct basic research. Permanent deodorizing is just one area where genetic engineering may have a profound impact on consumer markets.

Food, cosmetics and emotional "stabilizers" are other crossroads where the genetic engineer and the consumer will almost certainly meet.

Dr. A. M. Chakrabarty of General Electric, for example, is examining the possibility of partially converting the human digestive tract (through genetic means) so that people will be able to eat — and digest — hay and grass.

While a human diet of hay might result in a dangerous buildup of methane gas in the body, Dr. Chakrabarty declares that nonetheless, "we think it is technically possible." And he adds it could be done relatively simply by developing a special cellulolytic tablet that people would take every morning before breakfast.

Genetic alteration is also expected to gather millions of enthusiastic people who are concerned about improving their physical appearance.

Some researchers, indeed, belive cosmetics and plastic surgery will soon be regarded as rather crude art forms once the science of genetic modification enables the consumer to change such things as hair color, skin pigmentation, height and general body structure. In the words of Nobel laureate Alexis Carrel, man is about to become "both the marble and the sculptor."

Many scientists even claim they will soon be able to slow down old age and extend life beyond our wildest imagination. According to Dr. Kendall Pye, co-director of the Enzyme Technology Group at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, researchers now thing aging might be linked to damage done to DNA molecules, which occurs slowly over a person's lifetime.

By repairing the damaged DNA molecules "some experts believe it might then be possible to extend the average life span to well over 100 years — possibly several hundred years," Dr. Pye says.

Genetic engineers are also apt to find a ready market in mood alteration.

Says one scientist, "those of us who work in this field see a developimg potential for nearly total control of human emotional status, mental functioning and will to act."

The consumer market for mood-altering genetic surgery is already so firmly establised that even its critics are pessimistic about the possibility of forestalling its widespread and immediate use as soon as it becomes available. Psychoactive drugs (the precursor to genetic injections) are the most heavily prescribed drugs.

For example, Ciba Geigy Corp. offers its anti-depressant Tofranil to help you readjust when "losing a job to the computer may mean frustration, guilt and loss of esteem." And the Sandoz Co. has Serentil "for the anxiety that comes from not fitting in . . . the woman who can't get along with her daughter-in-law . . . the executive who can't accept retirement."

In a society where millions of people feel increasingly alienated at the hands of the giant bureaucracies that regulates their lives and who feel more and more powerless before the haunting spectre of pollution, urban decay, unemployment, inflation and a host of other critical problems, psycho-drugs offer the ideal fix. Their promotional intent is to convince the public that their problems are not social, economic and political, but are personal and, more important, "biological."

The incredible success of psycho-drug promotion and marketing has already paved the way for the introduction of mood-altering genetic engineering on a mass scale. Any consumer who has become habitually addicted to the purchase and consumption of psycho-drugs is a ready market for a "genetic fix."

Mass genetic injections and surgery are also likely to be heavily promoted by the medical fraternity. If past history is any guide at all, there is a very real possibility that such surgery will become a cure-all for whatever ails you — especially when scientists begin to perform surgical procedures for "polygenic" abnormalities that deal with moods and behavior.

Today, according to findings published in the International Journal of Health Services, almost half of all visits to the doctor's office are motivated by psycological — not physical — problems. Doctors often prescribe psycho-drugs for these emotional problems, but it is not difficult to imagine the same doctors recommending the more expensive and more permanent gene surgery once it's available."

Those who doubt that doctors would perform such surgery, especially if unwarranted, might look to a congressional report which found that in 1974 alone, U.S. doctors performed 2.4 million unnecessary operations — resulting in 11,900 deaths.

Spill Judgment Delayed

SECHELT (CP) — The federal fisheries case against Canadian Forest Products Ltd. resulting from an oil spill last Sept. 14 at the company's Port Mellon pulp mill has been remanded to June 1 for judgment.

Provincial court Judge J. S. P. Johnson gave the defence until May 1 to present written arguments in the case.

Testimony revealed that a leak occurred in a pipe at the plant Sept. 14. The pipe leaked for about half an hour before it was discovered and the oil supply cut off.

A report about the pipe was received the same night, but Richard Munro, a company employee, said emergency action was not deemed necessary.

Dr. Craig Walden, associate director of the B.C. Research Council, testified that a series of experiments he conducted showed the oil had no lethal effects on fish.

However, Wilfred Hevert, of Environment Canada, testified that his experiments indicated that certain concentrations of bunker C oil killed at least 50 per cent of the fish exposed to it after 96 hours.

CREDIT UNIONS EYE CREDIT CARD FIELD

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian credit unions may decide to enter the credit card field by late next year, says George May, chief executive officer of the Canadian Co-operative Credit Society.

"We should know by September of this year what route we might examine more closely—Visa, Mastercharge, or creating a third card totally owned by credit unions," May said at a news conference.

May said Provincial credit union organizations have approved a national credit card feasibility study, following a move by some United States credit unions to become enfranchised issuers of Visa credit cards.

Human Rights Appeals Coming Before Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Two appeals with the potential to set precedents for the women's liberation and homosexual rights movements are among 55 to be heard during the Supreme Court of Canada's spring session.

At issue are whether homosexuals are to be allowed the protection of human rights codes and whether maternity sections of the Unemployment Insurance Act contravene the federal Bill of Rights.

The nine-man court returns from Easter recess Tuesday, April 25, and likely will get to the two appeals in late May.

About the same time, May 23, it will hear the vital constitutional issues involved in the Keable commission appeal. The commission, which had been investigating illegal RCMP activities in Quebec, was shut down Feb. 21, when the Quebec Court of Appeal ruled that Keable infringed on federal government authority by trying to subpoena documents from a federal cabinet minister.

The homosexual rights appeal is the first such case before the high court in recent memory and is expected to have important ramifications, as well as stir up plenty of controversy.

It is being brought to Ottawa by the Gay Alliance Toward Equality (GATE) which was denied the opportunity to run an advertisement in the Vancouver Sun. GATE says rejection of the ad contravenes the British Columbia human rights code.

The ad, submitted about 3½ years ago, sought to promote the homosexual publication The Gay Tide. The Sun said its policy was to avoid any homosexual material.

An inquiry board under the B.C. human rights code ordered the ad accepted. The B.C. Supreme Court upheld that order but the B.C. Court of Appeal reversed it.

The appeal court said that a policy motivated by honest bias is reasonable.

The women's rights case involves Vancouver office worker Stella Bliss, fired from her job at Brown Brothers Ford Sales because she was pregnant. She appealed to the B.C. human rights branch, won her job back and was fired again, four days before giving birth in March 1976.

After the first firing she was denied UIC maternity benefits because she had not been working when the child was conceived. After giving birth she applied again, but was refused under a UIC Act section that said all pregnant workers must wait out the six-week, post-delivery period before being eligible for regular benefits.

Ms. Bliss appealed to a UIC umpire and won, but the Federal Court of Appeal ruled in the commission's favor last June.

Backing Ms. Bliss is the Vancouver Status of Women group which has been raising money to help pay expenses.

Also on the spring list is the interesting case of Maroun Mansour who was convicted of driving a car in a private parking lot while his licence was suspended.

The Ontario Court of Appeal ruled that a licence is needed only for driving on a public roadway and the Crown has appealed.

Radio station CKOY in Ottawa has an appeal that will test the Broadcasting Act. It was charged with broadcasting an interview without permission and the case will decide whether certain broadcasting regulations are valid.

The judges also will hear something about organized crime. The Crown will be appealing the acquittals of reputed Mafia chiefs Vincenzo (Vic) Cotroni and Paolo Violi on extortion charges. Violi's case is academic because he was gunned down in Montreal earlier this year.

CUPE HEAD BLASTS EMPLOYERS

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees says many employers are taking unfair advantage of massive unemployment by using threats of job reductions to intimidate workers and reduce militancy.

Grace Hartman said that many municipal employers are using the same unemployment situation to take away benefits already contracted to union employees.

She told a meeting of the municipal employees co-ordinating committee that unions must become better organized and more agressive to cope with employers.

"Employers are holding more or less a stacked deck," she said.

POLICEMEN CHARGES STAYED

DELTA (CP) — Assault charges against constables Terry Farrington, Brock Buchanan and Keith Wilson have been stayed because of lack of evidence, says Crown prosecutor Al Hoem.

The charges were laid after the three policemen went to the home of Svend Jensen, a resident of this municipality south of Vancouver, during an investigation of $2,000 damage to greens and shrubs at a local golf course.

WEEKEND FIRE DAMAGE AT MINT

OTTAWA (CP).— A weekend fire at the Royal Canadian Mint resulted in considerable smoke damage throughout the building, a fire official said.

The fire started in a storage room for painting materials in the basement and extended to the employees locker room next door.

There was also considerable electrical damage, the spokesman said.

There were no injuries, he said.

Wrecked Fingers Echo Emotions

DEAR ABBY: This may not seem like much of a problem but it's very serious to me. My wife chews her fingernails. Her fingers are constantly in her mouth. They are now infected and smell bad. So does her breath. The tips of her fingers are always red and inflamed. She must be a wreck inside to do this to herself.

She is otherwise attractive and well-dressed. The paradox is that she wears very beautiful, expensive jewelry on those unsightly hands. It's a shame.

No names please. This is a small town. — Last Resort

DEAR LAST: Your statement: "She must be a wreck inside to do this to herself," is the key to the problem. First she needs to find out why she's into such self-destruction behavior before she can overcome it. Psychotherapy is the solution.

"DEAR ABBY: In answer to TOO TALL, women in the know go for small men. That's why they go wild over Latin Americans and fight over jockeys. The big, tall men fall apart earlier. They get potbellies and double chins and succumb to heart attacks in their mid-40s, while the little wiry men are still going strong.

The next time you go to a dance, notice that the best dancers on the floor are the small men.

Half the women married to tall, dark and handsome men would love to trade them for the little runt they wouldn't go out with before they got married. VOICE OF EXPERIENCE"

DEAR ABBY: I am a schoolteacher who has been reading your column for years. Often your thoughts are taken to school with me and discussed with my high school students. However, your endorsement of Edith Head's asinine statement, "All women look alike in the bathtub," really hit bottom! Anyone who actually believes that quote must have lived in a segregated, monastic convent all their lives.

Please retract that gross masterpiece of misinformation! THE EYEBALL

DEAR EYEBALL: How's this? "All women look alike in the bathtub — if they are up to their necks in hot water" — which is where I was after that endorsement!

DEAR ABBY: About 150 senior citizens live here in a lovely place and we enjoy it. However, recently a problem has arisen. A little old lady has joined us, and no matter what is said, she says, "Oh, my God!"

She says it to express surprise, disappointment, joy and disapproval. Her constant "Oh, my Gods" are getting us down.

We don't want to hurt her feelings, but we would like to put a stop to her using that expression all the time.

DEAR L.O.L.: Tell her in a friendly way that her constant references to "God" are irreverent — unless she's praying. Then pray that she takes it in the proper spirit and overcomes the habit.

DEAR ABBY: I'm ashamed of you. I thought you were a liberated woman, but you are still clinging to sexist stereotypes.

I refer to a recent column in which you advised a love-starved wife to talk to her clergyMAN.

In case you haven't heard, Abby, we now have clergyWOMEN. Please update your vocabulary.

I recently received a letter from my bishop in which I was addressed, "Dear Brother Pastor." So even bishops lapse. However, I will forgive you if in the future you say, "Talk to your clergyPERSON." Otherwise, I shall send the next clergyMAN reference I see in your column to MS. Magazine.

I am a United Methodist minister and a full member of the Iowa Conference of the United Methodist Church. As an Iowa native, you must have grown up around Methodists.

Sign me . . . LADY PREACHER: ARLINGTON, IOWA

DEAR LADY: Not only did I grow up around Methodists, I attended a fine Methodist college in Sioux City, Iowa — Morningside.

Report me to MS. Magazine if you wish, but I'm not ready for "clergyPERSON" yet.

Mea culpa, mea maxima culpa. (I learned that when I took CATHOLIC instruction in Eau Claire, Wisc.)

UE Loyalists Carry On

Right now it numbers only 36 active members and six of those live out of town.

Nevertheless, it's been in existence in this city for over 50 years and throughout that time it has maintained its dedicated purpose — to keep in touch with descendants of Loyalists who came to Canada during the American revolutionary war of 1775 to 1783.

I'm talking, of course, of the Victoria branch of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada (UEL).

At the moment this group is preparing for a visit from the association's president, D. Stuart Gilmor, who will be in Victoria on Monday, April 24.

"We're really excited about this visit," local branch president Grace Mitchell told me, "and we are doing everything we can to make it an outstanding occasion."

"There's been such an enthusiastic response to this idea," Miss Mitchell explained, "we had to name last Thursday as deadline for reservations. By then we were assured of a capacity turnout to honor our president."

Mr. Gilmor is just completing his term as national president and in these final months he has been visiting the 21 branches of the UEL across Canada.

He is a life insurance salesman by profession, with a B.A. degree from University of Toronto. During the Second World War he served with the RCAF.

Following the dinner party he will address Victoria members and their guests on The Unity of Canada.

Assisting Miss Mitchell with arrangements are Mrs. Harold Needham, Mrs. MacGregor-Greer and C. B. Fisher, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The immediate past president is Mrs. W. J. Rae who has been on extended visit overseas.

It was on February 4, 1927, that 18 men and women met in the Assembly Room of the provincial library at the Legislative Buildings here, to form a UEL branch.

At that meeting it was moved by Alexander Fraser and seconded by A. E. Jones, that Beaumont Boggs and Col. T. B. Monk be named president and secretary pro tem.

The branch was incorporated on March 4, 1927, and Boggs and Monk were then confirmed in office.

That same night F. E. Winslow addessed the group on the famed Winslow papers, an historic item associated with Loyalist history.

In the early 50s the branch became dormant for a time. Then, in the mid-60s it was reactivated under the leadership of Olive Detlor Wilson.

Headings in local newspapers of that day read "Members Needed, United Empire Loyalists are on The Move Again."

People responded from as far away as Nanaimo to that rallying call, Miss Mitchell remembers, "and we were on our way again."

Col. J. W. D. Symonds was named president and during his term of office the branch started to award Canadian history prizes to outstanding students, a custom that is still continued each year.

Reaching back almost 40 years to May 29, 1939, when King George VI and Queen Elizabeth visited Victoria, Miss Mitchell told me the local UEL group gathered that night on the Heywood Avenue side of the Mayors' Grove in Beacon Hill Park.

J. H. Tabor was local president and he planted a maple tree in commemoration of the royal visit.

Members still keep watch on that tree, according to Grace Mitchell.

"It's healthy but it still is not very big. It should grow a lot more."

In recent years the branch has maintained a small library of books on UEL history.

It is in charge of the treasurer, C. B. Fisher and is available to anyone wishing to trace family lines back to those American revolutionary days.

In that library there is a book written by a local branch member, A. D. Flowers. It's titled The Loyalists of Bay Chaleurs and it was printed in 1973.

When her term of president is completed "most likely at the annual meeting next November", Miss Mitchell says she hopes to write children's stories based on UEL history.

She has done some research and has roughed-out several themes.

"Once I have the leisure time I'm going to really settle down and write," she told me.

Postscript—The United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada was incorporated on May 27, 1914, with head office in Toronto.

Purpose of the association, spelled out at the time was (in brief) "to unite together irrespective of creed or political party, the descendants of those families who, during the American revolutionary war of 1774 to 1783, sacrificed their homes in retaining their loyalty to the British Crown; and to perpetuate this spirit of loyalty to the Empire."

The last two are especially designed to save energy but they are not at all alike. By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike: Can you tell me about adjusting the idle on my 1972 Dart V8 with 2-barrel carburetor? The engine has never idled smoothly. I've got the plastic caps off the carb adjusting screws and have backed the screws out 2½ turns each. I've heard that's the right setting. It's still rough. Can you tell me the correct adjustment? — MALADJUSTED

Dear Mal: First of all, most 1972 models never would and never will idle smoothly. Smog regulations made them all run too lean that year. What you might do is simple experiment with the idle screws, as on any carburetor. Turn them in and out, one by one, until you get your fastest idle setting — which is usually also your smoothest.

Dear Mike: I read some time ago that the AMC Pacer was going to bring out a model with an Audi engine. Any further information? Will it be front-wheel drive? — CURIOUS

Dear Curious: I believe you're confusing this with the Gremlin, which is now available with a 4-cylinder Volkswagen Rabbit engine (same engine as in the Audi Fox). The 4-cylinder Gremlin, though, uses conventional rear-wheel drive. I drove a Gremlin 4 at AMC's press introduction last year and found the car very splunky. I hear it's economical, too.

Dear Mike: Is it true that fuel economy improves on a new car as it puts on more miles? If so, how many miles? I have a 1978 Pontiac Grand Prix with the 231-inch V6. The EPA says it's supposed to get 19 mpg in the city and 27 on the highway. I've now logged about 1500 miles, and the car still gets only 13.8 mpg around town. The dealer says to wait until I put on more miles — that the gas mileage will get better. But how long do I wait, and what's the magic mileage figure when my car's thirst begins to taper off? — SKEPTICAL

Dear Skeptical: Your gas mileage will get better. Most new cars get their worst mileage in the first 1000-1500 miles, when engines and running gear are still tight. Some don't loosen up until 10,000 miles or more.

Cellulose Insulation Should Be Checked

By A. J. HAND

Insulation is one of the hottest-selling products in the country. The promise of homeowners to beef up the insulation in their homes. This is all to the good, insulation makes sense.

Trouble is, the rush to insulate has caused shortages in some areas. A lot of orginal companies are springing up to fill the gap. This is particularly true in the case of cellulose insulation.

Cellulose insulation is little more than chopped paper, and as such is relatively simple to make. Anyone with a paper shredder can go into the business. Today there are well over 200 companies making the stuff.

Cellulose does a fine job of insulating. Dollar for dollar it will generally outperform fibreglass. But since it is made of chopped paper, it is highly flammable. The solution to this problem is to treat cellulose insulation with a fire-retardant chemical.

Unfortunately, this solution doesn't always work. There are presently shortages of boric acid (one of the best retardants) so second-rate retardants are being used in some cases. That's not the only problem. Even the best retardants must be properly applied or they will lose effectiveness. But with hundreds of companies churning out chopped paper, quality control is not what it should be. In the past two years, cellulose insulation has been involved in house fires all across North America.

The problem can be especially bad in attics where exposed wiring or lighting fixtures recessed into the ceiling below can ignite the cellulose. So if you presently have cellulose insulation in your attic, you should do two things.

Find out if the stuff is properly fireproofed. You local fire or building inspector may be able to test the insuation. If not, he can give you the name and address of a testing lab that can. If the insulation flunks the test, remove it and replace it with something else.

Meanwhile, go up in your attic and make sure the insulation that's there is at least three inches away from any source of heat that might possibly ignite the stuff. Recessed lighting fixtures like the one in the sketch are a main concern. So are ceiling fans and chimneys. To keep the insulation away, make a simple barrier around the heat source with a piece of sheet aluminum. Be sure not to fully enclose the heat source with the barrier, however, as that might trap and concentrate the heat. Leave the top open.

Should you buy cellulose insulation? Not if you can help it. In the future, tighter safety standards and mandatory enforcement of those standards should make cellulose suitably safe. But for now you are safest staying away from cellulose if you can get another form of insulation. If not, be sure the insulation is labelled with a current safety standard. One is the American Society for Testing and Materials standard. Another is a standard of the National Cellulose Insulation Manufacturers Assn. Another is the CMHC certification number.

Any of these three standards should assure you of a safe product. But make sure you actually see the numbers on the bags your cellulose is packed in. Don't take any salesman's word that his product passes muster.

U.K. Girls Taller

LONDON (AP) — British girls are becomming slimmer and taller, a fashion house says.

Ariella Fashions said sales of size eight and 10 dresses in London doubled in 1976-77 while sales of sizes 12 and 14 dropped 50 per cent.

Bethune Venerated

HONG KONG — Dr. Norman Bethune, the Canadian surgeon who worked and died with the Communist forces of Mao-Tse-tung, has been honored in China by his native government. Hsinhua, the official Chinese news agency, reported Sunday that a bronze bust of the doctor, a native of Gravenhurst, Ont., was dedicated Saturday at a cemetery for revolutionary martyrs in the northern city of Shihchiachuang. The bust, a gift from the Canadian government, was presented to Chairman Hua Kuo-feng during a visit to China last January by Don Jamieson, Canadian minister of external affairs.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Cindy Roberts, a mother of two from Anchorage, Alaska, was named Mrs. America on Saturday in the only major beauty pageant held in the United States for married woman. Mrs. Roberts, 31, a photographer and model, beat out contestants from the other 49 states and Puerto Rico in the nationally-televised contest at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel.

MONTREAL — Don M. E. Hamilton of Vancouver, Saturday was re-elected president of Broadcast News Ltd., a news service for private broadcasting and cable systems in Canada. Hamilton, vice-president and general manager of radio station CKLG Vancouver, represents British Columbia broadcasters on the BN board.

CHATHAM, Mass. — Gen. Lucius Clay, hailed as "the hero of Berlin" for engineering the post-war airlift of supplies to the blockaded city, died Sunday night at age 80 after a long period of failing health. Clay also supervised development of the U.S. interstate highway system, served as chairman of the board for Radio Free Europe and director of such firms as General Motors, Allied Chemical and the Chase Manhattan Bank. But it was with the military that Clay made his reputation. In 1948, he set up the round-the-clock airlift of supplies to West Berlin that cracked the Soviet blockade aimed at forcing Britain, France and the United States out of the former German capital.

Dogs of War No Fiction?

LONDON — Best-selling British novelist Frederick Forsyth financed and masterminded an attempt to overthrow the government of the West African state of Equatorial Guinea six years ago, the Sunday Times reported.

The newspaper said Forsyth's novel The Dogs of War, about mercenaries in Africa, was a thinly-disguised account of an actual operation in 1972-73.

The newspaper said it pieced the story together from mercenaries scattered in Europe and southern Africa. But it said when its reporters interviewed Forsyth, "they found him oddly coy about his source of inspiration."

The Sunday Times said Forsyth began to plot his coup d'etat against President Francisco Macias Nguema of Equatorial Guinea in 1970, shortly after returning from Biafra. Forsyth was a reporter with the British Broadcasting Corp. during the Nigerian civil war, in which Biafra unsuccessfully tried to form a separate state.

The newspaper said Forsyth's objective was to provide a new homeland for the defeated Biafrans. It said his confidant and adviser was a Scottish mercenary named Alexander Ramsay Gay. Their aim was to capture Macias Nguema island, otherwise known as Fernando Po, from which Nguema rules.

The Sunday Times said the abortive scheme cost $185,000.

Delay Cheered

PHILADELPHIA — The U.S. Internal Revenue Service has been given a rare thank you — from the Procrastinators Club.

The locally-based club, with 3,300 members nationwide who pride themselves on putting things off until tomorrow or the day after, is happy about the deadline extension for filing federal and Pennsylvania personal income tax returns.

Les Waas, club president, said members — many of whom true-to-form have yet to file returns — were going to be too busy to get forms in the mail on time.

ALLAH BRIEFS UPSET ARABS

BEIRUT — Moslem leaders in Kuwait are furious at London's Marks and Spencer department stores for sticking the label "There is no God but Allah" in Arabic on men's underwear, Kuwaiti newspapers report.

The newspapers have published pictures of the offensive underwear and printed angry attacks on the store, which they said "degraded the most respectable phrase in Islam.

They said the oil-rich state will ask Islamic countries to condemn "this affront" and to curtail the flow of Arab tourists to London.

Wealthy, free-spending Arabs are important to London's tourist trade, and there was speculation the slogan was designed to increase sales to Arab visitors.

Two Fine Vegetables

Two kinds of vegetables well liked by all who know them are edible-pod peas and corn-salad. Neither is grown here in quantities enough to reach retail stores for they quickly lose freshness when gathered. However both are of easy cultivation.

One sowing of edible pod peas made at the end of April will continue producing for as long as the one-inch pods are picked (every pod of that size) on alternate days. A second sowing for fall made by end of July will take you through late summer and fall, still providing that lovely spring freshness of flavor.

The fact of these pea pods being edible either uncooked or cooked makes them usable every day in several attractive ways — soups, salads, casserole dishes, or as a separate vegetable.

Pods retain crispness when lightly cooked. Their sweetness is combined with the delicate flavor of the tiny green peas in each pod. They are also edible when aging but then need to have side strings removed; and production stops as the peas size up in the pods.

Two or three varieties are available though one labelled simply Sugar Peas' is very suitable. Listed as dwarf, the vines need support up to four feet, but the huge crop is worth the effort.

Once the first flowers are seen, picking commences two days later. If you are accustomed to freeze vegetables, quantities can be put away for delicious dishes in winter. The extra vitamin and mineral values of the green pods make these peas a valuable crop for summer and winter, raw or cooked.

The pods at an inch long before the peas swell inside are about three-quarters of an inch wide, and practically flat. To prepare for salad, or cooking, or for freezing, the pods need only a quick "topping and tailing", no cutting.

Corn-salad is a salad plant of the Valerian family. It is referred to as Lamb's Lettuce by some people; not Lamb's Quarters which is a quite different plant of a different family, less desirable although it also is edible. Lamb's Quarters is in the Chenopodium family, likely to contain a fairly high level of oxalic acid, undesirable to the human system in quantity.

Corn-salad is free of this undesirable element and so can be used freely in salads for the pleasant crispness of the small leaves and unexpected taste of fresh sweet corn after chewing.

This food plant has been known by the French and Italians for centuries. It grows readily in cool seasons; a sowing in August goes through winter to give pickings of leaves and tip growth until April when a September sowing takes over with younger shoots from younger plants. I suspect these will rush into flower in the first hot spell but by that time, other salad greens will be abundant.

These two, edible-pod peas and corn-salad are two vegetables that become indispensable once they have been enjoyed for a full season. They don't take much space in the garden and they need only two sowings each to cover the season.

Bank Criticized For Loan Policies

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for a group protesting the economic policies of the Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) said Sunday the bank has taken Latin America backwards, not forward.

"Clearly the bank is an instrument of United States economic hegemony in Latin America because of their dependence on Latin American resources," said Jeff Keighley, one of the organizers of a counter-conference staged Sunday as delegates to the bank prepared to open their 19th annual meeting today.

The group protested IDB loans to such countries as Chile, Argentina and Nicauragua, arguing that 14 of 22 countries which receive help from the bank are military dictatorships.

Gary Cristall, another conference organizer, said that by taking in refugees from Chile and other countries, the Canadian government has recognized the suppression of human rights.

"At the same time, that seems to have no influence and doesn't gibe at all with the fact that Canada is now the single largest direct investor in Chile," he said. "Canadian money is flowing into a whole series of these countries to prop up regimes which have no basis there, except the basis of armed force.

Cristall said "that money helps nobody except the regimes that govern there and it helps those that invest in Canada."

"We make the case that there should be a boycott of produce coming from and aid for these Latin American companies where the denial of basic human rights is as serious as South Africa," Cristall said.

Keighley said financing of roads and communications systems in countries with anti-union regimes, "has provided the cheap labor pool both for some manufacturing and resource extraction that enables companies like INCO, Falconbridge, Alcan and Noranda to go to Latin America, to shut down production in Canada, to exacerbate unemployment in Canada and to provide virtually no developmental benefit to the country and certainly a negative impact to the workers involved in those operations."

The issue of human rights is not on the agenda at the conference which opened today with about 2,000 delegates and observers, including 40 ministers of finance from the bank's 41 member countries, in attendance.

Price Hike For 1978 Ford Cars

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. today increased the suggested base retail prices of its 1978 cars and trucks, including options, by an average $28 or four-tenths of one per cent.

A company spokesman said the increases recover a small portion of additional costs incurred since introduction of the 1978 models last October.

Among vehicles on which prices have been raised are the Fiesta, imported from Germany, which went up by 3.8 per cent and the Japanese-made Courier pickup truck, up by one per cent.

Price increases on those two models reflect recent changes in the exchange rate of Japanese and German currency, the spokesman said.

Egg Drop On Airport No Yolk

LANGLEY (CP) — Grade 6 and 7 students dropped eggs on this Fraser Valley community's airport last week but it wasn't an act of vandalism.

It was a science project, sponsored by the school district, to get students at nine elementary schools to explore forces such as gravity, wind, shockwaves and principles of aerodynamics.

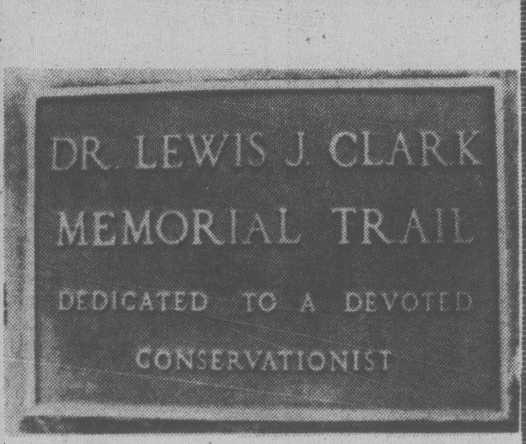
One was tucked into a water balloon, another was sandwiched in a two-tone toy football, and two more were cushioned by jars of cherry gelatin

"The children have to cushion an egg somehow so that when it's dropped 1,000 feet (300 metres), it won't smash," explained George Main, principal of Peterson Road elementary school.

At the airfield, a crowd of 100 anxious egg-packers, teachers and supporters watched as the packages were tossed from the plane, then wafted — or plummeted — to earth and bounced.

When the cracked eggs were counted, organizer George Ivanisko was ecstatic about the event's success. Of the 63 entries dropped from the Cessna 182, 55 survived and only eight were scrambled.



A permanent memorial to Dr. Lewis J. Clark, an original member of Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association, was opened Saturday by his widow Lorraine, assisted by club president Jacques Wendover. The Clark trail is marked by a bronze plaque set into rock amid wildflowers on which he was an authority.

By TOM ZITO
Washington Post

When is this folly to stop? Just how long do you think you can fool people with this garbage you laughingly call satire? When will you cease to pollute the minds of the innocent? How can you sleep at night when you think of all the people you've duped? If you were to cease printing tomorrow, the damage you already wrought would still be irreparable. You should be investigated as subversive.

Enclosed please find $7 to renew subscription.

Such is the stuff that comes hurtling over the transom at Mad magazine, the monthly purveyor of wacko humor appropriately located at 485 MADison Ave. (the masthead says it) in New York.

Once thought of as an adolescent, sophomoric, downright idiotic (the masthead almost says that) publication, Mad, as its very name might imply, has become something of an American institution. Twenty-five years old now, Mad has a monthly circulation of over two million and almost 100 Mad paperback books are steady sellers. All this is done with a staff of 10.

"We don't know what we're going to write next," says associate editor Jerry De Fuccio, "so who could use a secretary?"

The magazine began as Mad Comics, an offshoot of E.C. Comics, once perpetrators of bizarre titles like Tales From the Crypt that a congressional committee headed by Estes Kefauver found to contribute to juvenile delinquency. Soon after that, E.C Comics went the way of much mid-'50s flesh, and Mad became a monthly magazine. In issue No. 30, 1956, Mad unveiled its patron saint, Alfred E. Neuman, that familiar freckle-faced cretin with red hair and a missing tooth. Although he's now a registered trademark, Neuman actually comes from a 1907 newspaper ad for a Kansas City dentist named Painless Romine. There was a bandage tied around his head, as if his infamous missing tooth had just been yanked, and those immortal words were spelled out for all to see: "What, me worry?" Below that was another line now thoughfully excised: "It didn't hurt a bit."

"There is something magic about that face," says Mad writer Lou Silverstone, one of the "usual gang of idiots" not listed on the masthead who are all free-lance contributors to the magazine, "I remember when I was 10 buying a postcard of it at an arcade, long before Mad ever started up."

If Mad is unorthodox in its operation — no staff writers or artists, no advertising, a solitary notice to warn of lapsing subscriptions — so, too, is the way publisher Bill Gaines deals with his contributors and subscribers. Writers and artists are treated to an annual 17-day overseas jaunt, and Gaines sometimes personally helps out in the ritual destruction with hammer and screwdriver, of nonrenewing subscribers' address-stencils so they won't fall into the hands of junk-mail distributors. Once when the crew trekked off to Haiti for its annual trip, Gaines had in tow the name of the solitary Haitian subscriber and the entourage showed up in a caravan of nine jeeps — the lead car flying an Alfred E. Neuman pennant — to deliver his renewal form personally.

Even as publisher of the original E.C. Comics group, Gaines had displayed a voracious hunger for absolute detail — as well as food (a portly fellow, he has been known on a whim to fly to Paris for dinner). When De Fuccio first went to work for E.C's Two Fisted Tales and Front Line Combat 27 years ago, he suggested a combat strip on submarines. Gaines said. "The guys in the Navy will know if it's not real," so he sent the young writer off to New London for a week below on the U.S.S. Guardfisher. After surfacing, De Fuccio fired off a telegram:

Mad also has had its jollies in court, before the same judge, no less, who heard the Rosenberg case. Irving Berlin sued the magazine when a Sing Along with Mad article had Dr. Neuman in a Mitch Miller pose, leading readers through songs "sung to the tune of" a number of Berlin-penned items. Judge Irving R. Kaufman noted that the songwriter did not have "prior rights to iambic pentameter," and further observed that "If I sing Blue Skies in the shower, I do not have to send you a 2-cent royalty when I get out." Time called editor De Fuccio after the victory, and asked him how he felt. His response was straightforward: "God bless America."

The three editors of Mad meet constantly with contributors, who submit brief synopses of story ideas along with a few examples of how the idea will be developed.

"A lot of times there's some wonderful dirty stuff," says De Fuccio, a Jesuit-trained 52-year-old bachelor with 12 godchildren, whose pediatrician father was knighted by King Victor Emanuel III of Italy. "But we can't do it. We always say we're saving that stuff for the last issue." He hits his head and says, "Oh, I derailed my train of thought."

The 46-page, 60-cent ("cheap") Mad still revolves largely around its monthly film satire, one of the few regular features assigned to a writer and artist. Several studios are so anxious to have their products spoofed that they arrange special advance screenings for Mad contributors. Upcoming issues will bring Saturday Night Febble and Clod Encounters of the Absurd Kind.

And then there are the other Mad regulars: the crazy Spy vs. Spy capers by Antonio Prohias, a cartoonist forced to flee Cuba when his political tableaus infuriated Castro; the Don Martin comic strips that so often have oddly shaped people meeting untimely deaths and the topical humor. In this month's "Collection Drives" article, Mad discusses Dullness's Ten Early Warning Signs — "When you talk to your plants, do they wilt?"

"People really want to be entertained," says De Fuccio. "Sometimes it's really hard work. You know, the grass is always greener.

"When I was growing up in Jersey City, we used to say, 'Oh, the girls in Teaneck.' And then you meet some guy from Teaneck and he says, 'Oh, the girls in Jersey City.' Ultimately, though, I want to get into the produce business. I told Gaines that an eggplant doesn't have to be funny."

BBB Warns Public Canaid Firm Fades

And Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall is warning the public not to send in money to the company, Canaid Emergency Medical Alert.

Tindall said in an interview today he has received a number of complaints from persons throughout Western Canada who sent money with orders but did not get medical identification tags and bracelets.

He said he has been unable to contact the owner of the company, Robert Lombard.

Tindall said the post office has also closed out Canaid's box number and is returning mail to senders.

Lombard started the venture last March.

In an interview with the Times then he said he intended to advertise his service at doctors' offices across the country.

He offered identification cards, and assorted pins, labels and bracelets which bore the inscription Medical Alert and gave details of the wearer's particular illness or allergy.

The service, which Lombard later advertised in newspapers and magazines such as TV Guide, was similar to that provided by the world-wide, non-profit Medic Alert organization.

2,4-D Foes Hammered

PENTICTON (CP) — Environment Minister Jim Neilsen has taken another shot in the ongoing battle over the use of 2,4-D to control Eurasian milfoil in the Okanagan Lake system, attacking "so-called environmentalists, these armchair environmentalists" who oppose the use of the herbicide.

He said Saturday that 2,4-D, used in proper amounts, is safe and efficient, and does not cause retardation, cancer or birth defects.

Neilsen said the World Health Organization recognizes the value and safety of the chemical.

"The amount of 2,4-D used in the water here is well below the accepted world standards," he said. "Last year, 1,200 pounds of a mixture containing 20 per cent 2,4-D was used. This year, 1,000 acres are to be treated with maybe 2,000 pounds of the mixture to be used."

Rejecting arguments that the chemical presents health hazards, Neilsen said more than seven million pounds of the chemical has been used on the prairies in the past year, mainly on cereal crops.

He said those who have been trying to stop the use of the chemical are not backed up by scientists of any kind. The documents of protesters are "full of nonsense, not well researched with no scientific validity."

Neilsen said land disposal of sewage in Penticton will be no more expensive than the water disposal system currently used. Effluent now is pumped into Skaha Lake, but the provincial government recently denied an application by the city to increase the amount dumped daily.

Hydro Talks Continue

Hydro general manager Norm Olsen said after a meeting no date has been set for further meetings with the Office and Technical Employees Union, representing 3,700 office workers, or Local 213 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, representing 600 gas workers.

He said however, he expects to hear back from the unions this week.

IBEW spokesman Rick Dowling said Friday's session was quite fruitful.

The company is scheduled to meet with the Amalgamated Transit Union, representing 3,500 transit workers, Tuesday.

Last month the ATU staged a one-week strike in the Vancouver and Victoria areas.

RAIL BOTTLENECK SEEN

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Transportation problems for coal markets will be the major factor limiting coal development in southeastern British Columbia, says a former resource advisor to the B.C. government.

Alistair Crerar said in a telephone interview from Edmonton that although a poor sellers' market now is hampering Elk Valley coal development, a train bottleneck between the valley and the port at Vancouver will ultimately suppress coal development.

Crerar, now executive director of the Environmental Council of Alberta, said two CP Rail lines through the narrow Fraser Canyon crucial to East Kootenay coal shipments have nearly reached capacity and it will "probably be impossible" to construct another line through the narrow confines.

"It's the real worry in the whole situation . . . When I was in Victoria it was really at the top of our minds. The Fraser Canyon, as you can appreciate, is one of the toughest places in the world to build a railway."

He said the rail lines will reach capacity "at a very early date" and "there's not a heck of a lot of time left, especially if we ship more wheat, beef, potash or sulphur."

Shelford Won't Run In Next Election

Social Credit MLA Cyril Shelford — noted as one of the least partisan politicians in the legislature — has announced his intention not to seek re-election.

The 23-year veteran of provincial politics who represents Skeena riding, said in Terrace this weekend he is disillusioned with the bickering in the house.

Last week he said he knows of several other MLAs who will not run next time around but he declined to name them.

Shelford, a former agriculture minister in the W.A.C. Bennett administration, has been branded a maverick on a number of occasions because of his actions, including his support of an opposition non-confidence motion in the mid-1950's.

In his most recent speech in the house, Shelford, 57, said MLA's spend four-fifths of their time attacking one another instead of attacking problems.

He suggested the Socred government set up a small all-party committee to recommend changes in the operation of the legislature.

Such a committee might work, he said, because there are some MLA's who can agree that for the good of the province, changes must be made.

He said if personal attacks continue, people will soon believe that all parties are the same.

"Once this starts, it can soon spread so that democracy itself disappears."

He says he doesn't blame any one party in the legislature: "I think we're all caught in a trap of our own making."

MAIR NAMES RENTALSMAN

Patterson, 31, was named head of the rent review commission in 1975 and has worked closely with the rentalsman's office.

Clark announced two months ago he was quitting over budget restrictions.

Drunken Inmates On Axe Rampage At Jordan River

Pickaxe-wielding inmates at the Jordan River minimum security prison camp went on a drunken rampage Saturday night, burning to the ground an office-stores-gymnasium complex valued at $150,000, wrecking the camp's radio station and damaging other buildings, furnishings and equipment.

Following the disturbance, which lasted more than two hours and involved almost half the camp's 38 inmates, 14 prisoners were transferred to Wilkinson Road jail.

A senior official in the provincial corrections branch said today that liquor, perhaps of the bootleg variety, appears to have been the basic cause of the violence, which has seriously hampered the institution's operating ability.

Bill Jack, regional director of corrections for Vancouver Island, said no one was hurt in the incident although "there was a lot of shouting, rock throwing and pickaxe swinging."

The 4,000-square-foot building destroyed by fire was completed only about two months ago, he said, with inmates providing some of the labor in conjunction with the public works department.

"We are really concerned about it because in one fell blow they have wiped out the concentrated efforts of two years," he added.

"The camp is still functioning and staff are doing their best to keep things going, but this poses a lot of problems for basic things like food and stores items."

Jack said only two prison staff were on duty when the violence erupted. Off-duty staff and camp director Bill Dyke were called in, as well as Sooke RCMP.

An RCMP spokesman said today the first call for assistance came at about 8:30 p.m. and the incident was over by 11 p.m.

One inmate escaped during the uprising but was later apprehended. Police said they are still investigating and it is not known whether charges will be laid.

Jack said the rioters smashed the camp's radio equipment, which is used to maintain communications between the base camp and work details in the woods.

The radio also provided a link with the Wilkinson Road institution, and was used for emergency calls.

Other vandalism included damage to a hobby and games room. "Someone took a power saw and hacked through some of the walls."

Jack said the ready access to liquor in a minimum security camp is always a problem.

"In an open setting like Jordan River's, drop-offs are easily made and it's also fairly easy to get a still going somewhere in the bush," he added.

SPORTS

Some of the character Victoria Cougars showed during the Western Canada Hockey League campaign and playoffs came up again Sunday but it didn't help prolong their season. The Cougars, beaten 8-3 Saturday, were eliminated Sunday at Memorial Arena when they dropped a 6-5 decision to defending champion New Westminster Bruins. But the Cougars went out trying. Story on page 14.

The hockey season, continues for others.

Team Canada, placing much of its faith in "young legs," announced the lineup that will represent Canada in the world championships later this month. Among the youth-dominated lineup is Minnesota North Star rookie Brad Maxwell, a native of Victoria. Page 14.

Buffalo Sabres tripped New York Rangers 4-1 Saturday to complete the quarter-final lineup in the National Hockey League playoffs. The eight Stanley Cup survivors square off tonight. Page 14.

Professionals Cec Ferguson and John Morgan both fired par 70s Sunday at Royal Colwood to top qualifiers in the annual Vancouver Island Open golf tournament. The qualifying-round surprise, however, was the failure of defending champion Jim Rutledge. He missed. Page 15.

Also in golf, Gary Player came seven strokes off the pace to win the Tournament of Champions by two shots (page 15) and Burnaby's Jim Nelford, starting out as the day's leader, faded in the stretch to finish third in the Tallahassee Open which was won by Barry Jaeckel. (Page 21).

Gov't Wavers In Moro Case

ROME (AP) — Italy's governing Christian Democratic party has indicated it may modify its refusal to negotiate for the life of former premier Aldo Moro, kidnapped by terrorists a month ago, but the Communists urged the government to remain firm.

Christian Democratic leaders met for three hours Sunday to discuss the announcement from the Red Brigades terrorist organization that a "people's court" has sentenced Moro to death. A statement issued after the meeting said the party, while "aware of our duties before the nation" was "anguished about the life of (Moro) and therefore on the humanitarian level we feel that this life must be spared by all juridically possible and legitimate means."

The party, of which Moro is president, repeatedly rejected demands by the Red Brigades through letters written by Moro for the release of jailed terrorists. Fifteen of them are on trial in Turin on charges of sedition. However, the Christian Democrats never have ruled out the possibility of buying Moro's freedom with ransom money from his friends or family.

The Communists, the largest of the parties supporting the minority Christian Democratic government in parliament, said in an editorial in the party newspaper L'Unita that "emotional feelings (must not) prevail on the coolness and calm necessary in this grave hour."

TAXPAYERS PICK UP $60M-TAB FOR LOAN

TORONTO (CP) — More than 55,000 Canadians who borrowed money to go to university have defaulted on their government-guaranteed student loans at a cost to taxpayers at least $60 million, according to the Toronto Star.

The newspaper says those who have defaulted include successful businessmen and professionals.

The loans — obtained through the Canada Student Loans Program — are interest free until a student has been out of school six months.

The Star says it interviewed students who owe money, spokesmen for banks that made the loans, the federal government and the commercial collection agency hired to collect the loans and a source who has worked for several years with all four groups.

Ryan Says Leadership Was Key to Victory

But at his first formal news conference Sunday, the man who garnered 68.4 per cent of weekend delegate votes walked a fine line between leadership and insisting: "I don't want to impose my ideas on the national assembly (Liberal) caucus."

Ryan replied to most questions about the direction in which he would lead the Liberals with an appeal for time to consult with party members.

The former newspaper publisher, who 17 months ago urged the 40,000 subscribers of the influential Montreal daily Le Devoir to ditch the Liberal government of Robert Bourassa, also appealed for a clear start on a renewed Liberal party.

He said the provincial Liberal party should remain on the sidelines of an eventual federal election campaign but left the door open to possible involvement should Ottawa make constitutional proposals an issue.

Ryan, whose main campaign speech said "we are Quebecers first . . . but we are also Canadians, we are also in favor of maintaining a federal Canada," urged "infinite prudence" on federal involvement in the Quebec referendum question on independence.

He said there are good arguments to be made for a decision either way on whether he should try for a legislative seat—more time to consult with party members if he were free of national assembly duties, higher profile to confront the government of Premier Rene Levesque if he were a sitting member.

Hailed by his supporters as a thinker on constitutional and other issues, Ryan announced he plans to define the party's constitutional position in coming months.

Dollar Trading Down

Times News Services

In London, the British pound sold for $1.8490 U.S., a drop from $1.857. The Bank of England bought pounds to support the currency, and the pound recovered somewhat. In Montreal today the pound was at $2.1218.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar closed at 220.25 yen, up from 219.425, despite an announcement of record surpluses in Japan's current account and trade for March. Japanese ministers reacted quickly to the announcement of the surplus which could provoke fresh criticism from the United States and the European Economic Community.

Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda told a news conference that Japan could cut its current account balance of payments surplus drastically this year and External Economic Affairs Minister Nobuhiko Ushiba said Japan should make further tariff reduction concessions in the Multinational Trade Negotiations in Geneva.

The price of gold was fixed in London at $175.10 U.S. an ounce, down $3.40 from Friday's closing $178.50.

Metchosin Men Rescued After Cold Night Adrift

Four Metchosin men were rescued early Sunday morning after a frightening night adrift in a 15-foot fibreglass runabout.

They left Pedder Bay about 11 a.m. Saturday to go fishing and a short time later, the boat's outboard engine broke down.

Staton, owner of the boat, says the ordeal began when they found the boat being pulled out by the tide.

By 3 p.m. Saturday they were off Race Rocks and could see boats in the distance.

They tried to attract attention by setting fire to a lifejacket but the fire went unnoticed.

"It was a pretty rough night," Staton said today.

"It rained all night and it was blowing. We were pretty cold and pretty wet."

At 1 a.m. Sunday, Staton said a helicopter passed overhead but they couldn't signal because they had no lights, the battery having gone dead.

They tried waving a lifejacket on the end of a fishing rod but it was too dark to be noticed.

The worst moment was at daybreak when they realized no search had been started for them.

"It was getting a bit scarey," Staton said.

"We were paddling when we saw this freighter passing by. We stood up and waved our lifejackets."

The crew of the freighter Pergmoss told the men they

Great Egg Race Champ

A Burnaby man who managed to propel an egg 38.85 metres with an elastic band captured the first place title in the Great B.C. Egg Race Saturday.

William Cameron, 53, won the over-all competition after his egg machine travelled all the way up the end ramp and back down again.

The idea was to see how far, not how fast egg-carrying machines could move down a designated runway. Only Grade A large domestic eggs could be used.

A device called the Pushmi Pollo invented by the team of John Sibert, 37, and John Thompson, 46, of Nanaimo, moved an egg 25.2 metres to take second place.

The vehicle, powered by a No. 10 Viceroy elastic, gets the first part of its name from a mythical two-headed creature featured in Dr. Doolittle children's books and the last part from the Spanish word for chicken.

In the Class A category (13 years old and under) the winner was Mark Knelson, 11, and the Class B event (14 to 19 years of age) winner was Eddie Harcourt, 15. Both winners gave the same Burnaby address as Cameron.

There were only five entries in the competition. The only Victoria contestant, John La Boyne, experienced difficulties at the starting gate.

Rental Car Firm Guilty

LANGLEY (CP) — Budget Rent-a-Car System has been fined $200 in provincial court after pleading guilty to misleading advertising.

The company admitted that it displayed a sign in its office window last July stating that a car could be rented from Friday noon through Monday noon for $13.95 a day.

An investigation by the marketing practices branch of the federal consumer and corporate affairs department showed that a vehicle could not be rented at a rate lower than $15.95 a day for the weekend period.

GAME PLAN WORKS, TONS OF POT SEIZED

MIAMI (AP) — A mother ship carrying more than 20 tons of marijuana is in U.S. Coast Guard hands after federal agents made a marijuana buy on the high seas.

"It was a beautiful game plan for going out and picking up a load of pot," detective Bill Sprague of the Martin County sheriff's office said of Sunday's seizure of the Montesuma, a 100-foot freighter.

The vessel, carrying Mexican registry and a crew of 12, was seized with "in excess of 20 tons on board" about 100 kilometres off Fort Pierce, Fla., by the cutter Shoalwater, coast guard spokesman Dave Tait said.

The operation started after the Florida Marine Patrol got suspicious of a cabin cruiser, which had been towed into a Martin County marina, because it no markings.

Searching the boat, officers found a sheet of instructions in Spanish. Sprague, who translated the instructions, said the paper explained the steps necessary to pick up a load of marijuana from the freighter.

He said the instruction sheet gave the location of the freighter, radio frequency to make contact with the ship and code words to use.

Using the instructions, three narcotics agents on board a 40-foot fishing boat made contact with the freighter Sunday morning. After unloading about 20 bales of marijuana weighing about 50 pounds each, the agents headed back to port.

The coast guard then seized the ship. Since it was in Bahamian waters, the coast guard first got permission from the the Bahamian government.

NANAIMO EYES NEW MOORAGE

Marina facilities in Nanaimo may be doubled.

A plan developed by the Nanaimo Harbor Commission and the federal public works department, will provide an additional 100 mooring spaces for commercial fishboats during the winter with the spaces being used by pleasure craft during the summer months.

The federal government has been asked to fund the estimated $1.6 million project under the Small Boat Harbours Act.

"The city enjoys substantial benefits from the commercial fishing fleets and recreational boaters and it is important we improve the present marina to accommodate growing demands," he said.

In addition to the marina expansion, there is provision for private facilities which could add another 170 berths, and a seaplane moorage.

CRASH FOUND

A Canadian Forces helicopter hoped to to land a ground party today to examine the wreckage of a plane carrying two Ottawa men.

Bad weather hindered attempts to reach the site Sunday.

The wreckage of the single-engine Grumman American plane, lost 21 days ago on a flight from Penticton to Victoria, was located Saturday on a mountainside near Stave Lake, about 30 kilometres north of Mission, by a helicopter which lowered a crewman to the site.

However, because of heavy snow, he was unable to determine if there were any bodies in the wreckage, a search and rescue spokesman said.

Aboard the plane were pilot Abou Ammo, 21, and passenger Douglas Craig, 23, who set out from Ottawa in a rented plane to hunt for jobs in western Canada.

"It was an adventure as well as a job hunt," the spokesman said. He said the aircraft did not have an electronic locator transmitter.

No Rhodesian Progress

SALISBURY (CP) — Foreign Secretary David Owen of Britain and U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance talked with white and black Rhodesian leaders for almost three hours today without apparent progress toward arranging an all-party Rhodesian conference.

Owen and Vance met Prime Minister Ian Smith and the three black partners in the interim government in a suburban mansion while several thousands blacks chanted and waved placards outside.

When the visiting ministers and the Rhodesian leaders took a break for lunch, the demonstrators surged into the street, blocking traffic as Bishop Abel Muzorewa, one of the three black leaders, was driven away.

The demonstrators opposed the U.S.-British plan for an all-party Rhodesian conference that would include leaders of guerrillas based outside the country.

They carried placards reading: "Down with Britain and America's conference," and "Go home, Owen." The demonstrators belonged to Muzorewa's United African National Council, one of the three groups in the interim government's executive council.

U.S. offiicials said participants in the morning meeting stated their views but there was no indication of any shift in position.

The U.S. and British envoys, who reject the internal settlement reached by Smith and the three black leaders, have won agreement for an all-party conference from guerrilla leaders based outside Rhodesia. They have also received a cautious endorsement from South Africa.

But it appears unlikely that Vance and Owen will get Smith and his three black associates to negotiate with guerrilla leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

Bishop Muzorewa, one of the three black members of the executive council, said the council will be "stubborn, firm and uncompromising" in its opposition to any changes in the blueprint for Rhodesia's transition to black rule which he, Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau signed with Smith last month.

CITY MAN SHOOTING VICTIM

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Police have identified Brian Vincent Swift, 40, of Victoria as the man fatally shot Friday night in a house here.

Police said Martin John Aalto, 44, also of North Vancouver, has been charged with second-degree murder and is to appear in court.

Volunteers to Rescue

couldn't stop but would notify the Canadian coast guard.

The Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt notified the Oak Bay police, who alerted the Oak Bay Search and Rescue volunteers.

The 36-foot pleasure cruiser Hapi-Hari went to the rescue and found the boat drifting two miles southeast of Trial Island.

Manning the Hapi-Hari were her owner Harry Horton, his son Dave, Stuart Fraser and his son Ian, Keith Pittam and two off-duty policemen, Sgt. Jack Bryan and Const. Ron Morgan.

"They were in pretty bad shape when we found them," the elder Fraser said today. "We had to pull them out of the boat."

Fraser said the weekend incident is about the 40th rescue carried out by the volunteers since the group was organized about a year ago.

And, in White Rock, a 73-year-old man with two cracked ribs who rowed 11 hours after his outboard motor broke down Saturday says he is going to sell his boat.

"That's not going to happen to me again," said James Dick Sunday after being picked up from a beach where he had spent Saturday night. "One round like that is enough."

Dick, who cracked his ribs in an accident at his Richmond, B.C., home earlier in the week, was fishing Saturday when a gear broke in the outboard of his small aluminum boat, forcing him to row through 3-metre waves.

"I rowed that boat 11 hours to get to land," he said. "I had to fight that wind. If you stopped for just a minute you'd go back maybe 20 feet."

After reaching the beach, Dick took a few hours rest and then set out along the beach, walking about two miles before a search and rescue hovercraft picked him up early Sunday.

Get More Students

NEW YORK (AP) — Foreign enrolment at colleges and universities in the United States climbed past the 200,000 mark last year. A survey by the Institute of International Education shows there were 203,000 non-immigrant students from more than 150 countries at 3,200 accredited institutions in the U.S. in the 1976-77 academic year, an increase of 24,000 over 1975-76.

Shelford Won't Run In Next Election

Social Credit MLA Cyril Shelford — noted as one of the least partisan politicians in the legislature — has announced his intention not to seek re-election.

The 23-year veteran of provincial politics who represents Skeena riding, said in Terrace this weekend he is disillusioned with the bickering in the house.

Last week he said he knows of several other MLAs who will not run next time around but he declined to name them.

Shelford, a former agriculture minister in the W.A.C. Bennett administration, has been branded a maverick on a number of occasions because of his actions, including his support of an opposition non-confidence motion in the mid-1950's.

In his most recent speech in the house, Shelford, 57, said MLA's spend four-fifths of their time attacking one another instead of attacking problems.

He suggested the Socred government set up a small all-party committee to recommend changes in the operation of the legislature.

Such a committee might work, he said, because there are some MLA's who can agree that for the good of the province, changes must be made.

He said if personal attacks continue, people will soon believe that all parties are the same.

"Once this starts, it can soon spread so that democracy itself disappears."

He says he doesn't blame any one party in the legislature: "I think we're all caught in a trap of our own making."

Quake Hits Sicily

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of Sicilians spent Sunday night out of doors fearing more of the earthquakes that rocked southern Italy early Sunday. Police said five persons died, including four heart attack victims.

150 Feared Dead

NEW DELHI (AP) — Rescuers have recovered 35 bodies from two east Indian villages flattened by a tornado in Orissa state, and officials said today the death toll could rise above 150.

MAIR NAMES RENTALSMAN

Patterson, 31, was named head of the rent review commission in 1975 and has worked closely with the rentalsman's office.

Clark announced two months ago he was quitting over budget restrictions.

Drunken Inmates On Axe Rampage At Jordan River

Pickaxe-wielding inmates at the Jordan River minimum security prison camp went on a drunken rampage Saturday night, burning to the ground an office-stores-gymnasium complex valued at $150,000, wrecking the camp's radio station and damaging other buildings, furnishings and equipment.

Following the disturbance, which lasted more than two hours and involved almost half the camp's 38 inmates, 14 prisoners were transferred to Wilkinson Road jail.

A senior official in the provincial corrections branch said today that liquor, perhaps of the bootleg variety, appears to have been the basic cause of the violence, which has seriously hampered the institution's operating ability.

Bill Jack, regional director of corrections for Vancouver Island, said no one was hurt in the incident although "there was a lot of shouting, rock throwing and pickaxe swinging."

The 4,000-square-foot building destroyed by fire was completed only about two months ago, he said, with inmates providing some of the labor in conjunction with the public works department.

"We are really concerned about it because in one fell blow they have wiped out the concentrated efforts of two years," he added.

"The camp is still functioning and staff are doing their best to keep things going, but this poses a lot of problems for basic things like food and stores items."

Jack said only two prison staff were on duty when the violence erupted. Off-duty staff and camp director Bill Dyke were called in, as well as Sooke RCMP.

An RCMP spokesman said today the first call for assistance came at about 8:30 p.m. and the incident was over by 11 p.m.

One inmate escaped during the uprising but was later apprehended. Police said they are still investigating and it is not known whether charges will be laid.

Jack said the rioters smashed the camp's radio equipment, which is used to maintain communications between the base camp and work details in the woods.

The radio also provided a link with the Wilkinson Road institution, and was used for emergency calls.

Other vandalism included damage to a hobby and games room. "Someone took a power saw and hacked through some of the walls."

Jack said the ready access to liquor in a minimum security camp is always a problem.

"In an open setting like Jordan River's, drop-offs are easily made and it's also fairly easy to get a still going somewhere in the bush," he added.

SPORTS

Some of the character Victoria Cougars showed during the Western Canada Hockey League campaign and playoffs came up again Sunday but it didn't help prolong their season. The Cougars, beaten 8-3 Saturday, were eliminated Sunday at Memorial Arena when they dropped a 6-5 decision to defending champion New Westminster Bruins. But the Cougars went out trying. Story on page 14.

The hockey season continues for others.

Team Canada, placing much of its faith in "young legs," announced the lineup that will represent Canada in the world championships later this month. Among the youth-dominated lineup is Minnesota North Star rookie Brad Maxwell, a native of Victoria. Page 14.

Buffalo Sabres tripped New York Rangers 4-1 Saturday to complete the quarter-final lineup in the National Hockey League playoffs. The eight Stanley Cup survivors square off tonight. Page 14.

Professionals Cec Ferguson and John Morgan both fired par 70s Sunday at Royal Colwood to top qualifiers in the annual Vancouver Island Open golf tournament. The qualifying-round surprise, however, was the failure of defending champion Jim Rutledge. He missed. Page 15.

Also in golf, Gary Player came seven strokes off the pace to win the Tournament of Champions by two shots (page 15) and Burnaby's Jim Nelford, starting out as the day's leader, faded in the stretch to finish third in the Tallahassee Open which was won by Barry Jaeckel. (Page 21).

Dollar Trading Down

Times News Services

In London, the British pound sold for $1.8490 U.S., a drop from $1.857. The Bank of England bought pounds to support the currency, and the pound recovered somewhat. In Montreal today the pound was at $2.1218.

In Tokyo, the U.S. dollar closed at 220.25 yen, up from 219.425, despite an announcement of record surpluses in Japan's current account and trade for March. Japanese ministers reacted quickly to the announcement of the surplus which could provoke fresh criticism from the United States and the European Economic Community.

Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda told a news conference that Japan could cut its current account balance of payments surplus drastically this year and External Economic Affairs Minister Nobuhiko Ushiba said Japan should make further tariff reduction concessions in the Multinational Trade Negotiations in Geneva.

The price of gold was fixed in London at $175.10 U.S. an ounce, down $3.40 from Friday's closing $178.50.

Gov't Wavers In Moro Case

ROME (AP) — Italy's governing Christian Democratic party has indicated it may modify its refusal to negotiate for the life of former premier Aldo Moro, kidnapped by terrorists a month ago, but the Communists urged the government to remain firm.

Christian Democratic leaders met for three hours Sunday to discuss the announcement from the Red Brigades terrorist organization that a "people's court" has sentenced Moro to death. A statement issued after the meeting said the party, while "aware of our duties before the nation" was "anguished about the life of (Moro) and therefore on the humanitarian level we feel that this life must be spared by all juridically possible and legitimate means."

The party, of which Moro is president, repeatedly rejected demands by the Red Brigades through letters written by Moro for the release of jailed terrorists. Fifteen of them are on trial in Turin on charges of sedition. However, the Christian Democrats never have ruled out the possibility of buying Moro's freedom with ransom money from his friends or family.

The Communists, the largest of the parties supporting the minority Christian Democratic government in parliament, said in an editorial in the party newspaper L'Unita that "emotional feelings (must not) prevail on the coolness and calm necessary in this grave hour."

TAXPAYERS PICK UP $60M-TAB FOR LOAN

TORONTO (CP) — More than 55,000 Canadians who borrowed money to go to university have defaulted on their government-guaranteed student loans at a cost to taxpayers at least $60 million, according to the Toronto Star.

The newspaper says those who have defaulted include successful businessmen and professionals.

The loans — obtained through the Canada Student Loans Program — are interest free until a student has been out of school six months.

The Star says it interviewed students who owe money, spokesmen for banks that made the loans, the federal government and the commercial collection agency hired to collect the loans and a source who has worked for several years with all four groups.

Ryan Says Leadership Was Key to Victory

But at his first formal news conference Sunday, the man who garnered 68.4 per cent of weekend delegate votes walked a fine line between leadership and insisting: "I don't want to impose my ideas on the national assembly (Liberal) caucus."

Ryan replied to most questions about the direction in which he would lead the Liberals with an appeal for time to consult with party members.

The former newspaper publisher, who 17 months ago urged the 40,000 subscribers of the influential Montreal daily Le Devoir to ditch the Liberal government of Robert Bourassa, also appealed for a clear start on a renewed Liberal party.

He said the provincial Liberal party should remain on the sidelines of an eventual federal election campaign but left the door open to possible involvement should Ottawa make constitutional proposals an issue.

Ryan, whose main campaign speech said "we are Quebecers first . . . but we are also Canadians, we are also in favor of maintaining a federal Canada," urged "infinite prudence" on federal involvement in the Quebec referendum question on independence.

He said there are good arguments to be made for a decision either way on whether he should try for a legislative seat—more time to consult with party members if he were free of national assembly duties, higher profile to confront the government of Premier Rene Levesque if he were a sitting member.

Hailed by his supporters as a thinker on constitutional and other issues, Ryan announced he plans to define the party's constitutional position in coming months.

Metchosin Men Rescued After Cold Night Adrift

Four Metchosin men were rescued early Sunday morning after a frightening night adrift in a 15-foot fibreglass runabout.

They left Pedder Bay about 11 a.m. Saturday to go fishing and a short time later, the boat's outboard engine broke down.

Staton, owner of the boat, says the ordeal began when they found the boat being pulled out by the tide.

By 3 p.m. Saturday they were off Race Rocks and could see boats in the distance.

They tried to attract attention by setting fire to a lifejacket but the fire went unnoticed.

"It was a pretty rough night," Staton said today.

"It rained all night and it was blowing. We were pretty cold and pretty wet."

At 1 a.m. Sunday, Staton said a helicopter passed overhead but they couldn't signal because they had no lights, the battery having gone dead.

They tried waving a lifejacket on the end of a fishing rod but it was too dark to be noticed.

The worst moment was at daybreak when they realized no search had been started for them.

"It was getting a bit scarey," Staton said.

"We were paddling when we saw this freighter passing by. We stood up and waved our lifejackets."

The crew of the freighter Pergmoss told the men they

New York

As it shot upward at the opening, the Dow broke cleanly through the 800 level, erasing all of its losses since early January.

Analysts said the rally that began last week was feeding on itself, attracting additional waves of buying by investors anxious not to miss out on any further market gains.

The upsurge since late last week has been attributed in large measure to a rush of buying by investing institutions who had built up large reserves of cash.

But foreign investors also were said to be playing a significant role — especially today, with the depressed dollar in the midst of a strong rally against leading foreign currencies.

Blue chip and glamor issues, the weakest sector of the market until late last week, were standout performers for the second straight session. Eight of the 10 most active NYSE issues sported gains of better than a point.

Brokerage house stocks also thrived. The volume leader was Merrill Lynch and Co., parent company of the nation's largest brokerage house, up 1⅝ to $18⅞.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were broadly higher in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 395,100 shares, compared with 360,000 shares traded up to the same time Friday.

London

LONDON (CP) — Fears of a further rise in the British short-term interest rate sent the London stock market moderately lower today at the close of light trading.

The London Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 446.7, down 0.7.

Husky Oil

Husky Oil Ltd., of Calgary, is planning a major expansion of its Canadian heavy-oil plant facilities to meet increased demand, James Neilsen, company president, said.

Neilsen told the company's annual meeting that Husky wants Ottawa and the Saskatchewan government to study the prospects so a decision can be made on construction of its proposed heavy crude oil upgrading plant near Lloydminster, Sask.

He said the plant, with a 100,000-barrel-a-day output, would cost more than $520 million and would employ about 350 workers.

Nielsen also told shareholders that the company is considering buying a coal property with proven reserves in either western Canada or the United States.

As previously reported, Husky Oil had record earnings of $42.8 million in 1977, or $4.06 a share, in 1977, compared with $30 million, or $3.02 a share, in 1976. Sales and operating revenues were $620.4 million, up from $522.4 million in 1976.

Norcen Energy

Norcen Energy Resources Ltd., which was forced to curtail some of its diversified operations last year, anticipates improved earnings in the first quarter of 1978, shareholders were told today.

Edward Battle, president, told the annual meeting that income in the first three months should increase to $23 million from $21 million in the corresponding period last year.

However, he cautioned that the estimate is "not indicative of net earnings for the full year 1978 for a number of reasons, including the cyclical nature of certain segments of our operations and the impact of decisions rendered in 1977 and 1978."

As reported earlier, Norcen's net income before extraordinary items last year was $32.3 million or $1.52 a share compared with $31.0 million or $1.58 the previous year.

After extraordinary items, the loss applicable to common shares from continuing operations was $100,000 compared with a $34.0-million profit in 1976.

Control Data

Minneapolis-based Control Data said its net for the first quarter rose to $15.7 million, or 90 cents a share, from $12.9 million, or 75 cents a share, a year before. Revenue was $604.4 million, compared with $523 million in 1977.

Cartage Terminals Closing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Millar and Brown, one of Canada's largest cartage firms, will close five of its terminals — four of them in British Columbia — at the end of April, says a company spokesman.

He said terminals would be closed in Vernon, Kamloops, Nelson, Creston and Medicine Hat, Alta.

He said layoffs will be kept to a minimum as workers will be offered jobs at other locations. There are 19 employees at the Vernon terminal.

The spokesman said the closures were necessary to allow the company to keep its rates down.

"We either had to close down the terminals or increase our rates," he said.
